BRITISH ESTABLISH NEW DEFENSE LINES

Troops Ready Themselves For Contact with Fast Moving German Divisions

British and Greeks Fight Savagely To Stem Drive of Monster Nazi Tanks under Clouds of Stuka Dive-Bombers; Port of Piraeus Heavily Bombed; Town of Lamia Is Badly Wrecked

(By The Associated Press)

WITH THE BRITISH FORCES IN GREECE, April 22 (AP)—The entire British Expeditionary Force and most of its material were fully established tonight in new defense lines which the Germans were expected to contact soon.

The German advance on the new lines continued South of captured Larissa. The Port of Volos was occupied by the Nazis today.

Early arrivals in the new Allied line already had dug in for determined resistance as their comrades were completing a methodical withdrawal under covering forces.

(In Berlin, German military commentators said spearheads of the Panzer divisions were within sight of historic Thermopylae pass with the British in "full retreat.")

The situation is not much changed from yesterday, with the covering forces holding the same posts.

Nazis Dominate the Air

The Germans continued to dominate the air, but operations were somewhat reduced.

There was intense activity Sunday when hundreds of German planes bombed and machine-gunned the British forces and Greek peasants observing the orthodox Easter. This was attributed to the Luftwaffe's desire to put on a big show for Adolf Hitler's fifty-second birthday. The planes apparently came from Salonika, where it is understood Hitler spent the day.

The town of Lamia now is badly wrecked and burned as Larissa after repeated bombings, and every village in the area has some wrecked houses.

ATHENS, April 22—Battered British and Greek troops fought savagely tonight at the Northern gates of Thermopylae Pass, 100 miles North of Athens, trying to check the drive of Germany's monster tanks and clouds of Stuka dive-bombers.

Other units deployed in the Lokris mountain range in this supreme effort to prevent the Nazi tide from

German Bombers Strike Heavily At England Areas

Southwest Coastal Areas Bombed in Two Destructive Attacks

LONDON, April 23 (Wednesday)—German bombers struck heavily at Southwest coastal areas of England last night and today in two destructive attacks.

A number of persons were believed trapped in a shelter at one point, and several casualties were reported. A number of large stores and a hospital were among the buildings reported damaged.

One raid ended before midnight, after a quiet interval another wave of the Luftwaffe arrived to cast even heavier bombs in the same area.

The section, unidentified by the British, may have been Plymouth, which was raided heavily Monday night.

The bombers came in from over the calm sea and with their usual technique dropped bright flares, followed up by explosives and incendiary bombs.

The Germans also raided a South Coast district, but authorities said most of their bombs fell on open ground and caused no loss of life.

London had two short alarms but the only "incidents" were bursts of anti-aircraft gunfire as the raiders sped over the capital.

New Program Will Provide Levy of 16.5 Per Cent on Lowest Brackets

Childless Married Couple Earning $2,500 Would Pay $72 Instead of Present $11 Levy

WASHINGTON, April 22 (AP)—A system of greatly increased income taxes, providing an effective levy of 16.5 per cent on the lowest tax bracket, was disclosed today to be part of a treasury program for raising $3,600,000,000 in new revenue.

The present effective rate is 4.4, including a defense "super-tax" amounting to ten per cent of the "normal" levy of four per cent of taxable income.

The new system, built around steeply increasing surtaxes and estimated to produce $1,517,100,000, would boost to $72 the income levy of a childless married couple with an earned net income of $2,500. Such a couple now pays $11.

(The House committee, meeting behind closed doors, is considering ways of raising the $3,600,000,000 of additional revenue. Committee members told reporters yesterday that the treasury had proposed an increase in the effective individual income tax from 4.4 to 6.6 per cent but a typewritten statement of the treasury proposal, released unofficially today, was considerably different from yesterday's oral reports.)

Summary Is Made Public

The treasury summary, as made public today, would continue the four per cent normal tax but would add to it surtaxes starting at eleven per cent on the first $2,000 of taxable income. To the sum of the normal taxes and surtaxes would be added the ten per cent super-tax. In other words, to this fifteen per cent total would be added a 1.5 percent, making a grand total of 16.5 per cent.

At present the surtax is applicable only to income above $4,000, and the first surtax bracket—from $4,000 to $6,000 of taxable income—is only four per cent plus the super-tax. Taxable income is income remaining after deduction of contributions to church and charity, tax and interest payments and the fixed exemption of $800 for single persons, $2,000 for married persons and $400 for each dependent.

These exemptions would continue as at present, under the department's outline. The present ten per cent for income earned, as against that derived from investments, would be continued for purposes of the normal tax but would not apply to the surtaxes.

Proposed Surtaxes

The surtax rates proposed were:

On the first $2,000 of taxable income eleven per cent; $2,000 to $4,000—fourteen per cent; $4,000 to $6,000—sixteen per cent; $6,000 to $8,000—nineteen per cent; $8,000 to $10,000—twenty-one per cent; $10,000 to $12,000—twenty-three per cent; $12,000 to $14,000—twenty-five per cent; $14,000 to $16,000—twenty-seven per cent; $16,000

Prime Minister Silent on British Position in Greece

"Not Unlikely" Germany Now Has Possession of Samothrake Island

(By The Associated Press)

LONDON, April 22—Winston Churchill solemnly faced the House of Commons today for the first time since the Easter recess and the corresponding Allied reverses in the Balkans and acknowledged it was "not unlikely" that Germany now holds Greece's Samothrake island, barely fifty miles off the mouth of Turkey's Dardanelles.

Anxious members of the House were, however, unable to draw from Churchill a detailed statement of the British position on the Greek peninsula. He insisted he must remain silent for the time because "operations of many kinds are going on and we have others to think of besides ourselves."

These operations, he said, have

In the light of history, he said at a press conference, the American people should not go to a pinnacle one day because of a British victory in the Mediterranean, and then

New Training Plane Has Glass Smooth Wings

Ship Turned Out at Hagerstown Is Innovation in U. S. Aviation

HAGERSTOWN, Md., April 22 (AP)—In the presence of Merrill C. Meigs, director of aircraft production for the office of production management, a primary training plane with glass-smooth wings—an innovation in American airplane-making—was delivered today to the United States Army Air Corps.

Meigs, former Chicago newspaper publisher and long a holder of a pilot's license, took the trainer aloft himself after presentation ceremonies.

"My flying is just ham and eggs flying—no stunting," Meigs said with a grin before he took off.

Speakers described the ceremonies today as having more significance than the completion by the Fairchild engine and airplane corporation of the five hundredth trainer in a little more than a year for the air corps.

Contributing to the feat was the City of Hagerstown, which, by establishing a training school, enabled the Fairchild Corporation to boost employment from less than 500 to almost 1,300 in thirteen months.

The plane itself presented flawless wing surfaces to the air, an accomplishment made possible by a semi-molding process. Much has been forecast in recent months about the manufacture of molded planes, but the Fairchild company became the first to employ a system whereby the "skin" of the wing was molded of laminated wood held together with plastic glue.

Ordinary aluminum alloy wings are studded with rivets which interrupt air flow and reduce speed.

William Preston Lane, Jr., president of the Herald-Mail Publishing Company, commented that "what is happening in Hagerstown is indicative of what is going on throughout the United States without fanfare. Local governments are coordinating their contributions to national defense effort with those of official Washington."

Also present at the ceremonies were J. Carlton Ward, junior, president of the Fairchild company, and Sherman Fairchild, board chairman.

The primary trainer manufactured here is fitted with one seventy-five-horsepower, in-line, air-cooled engine—unusual aircraft construction. Practically all air-cooled engines are star-shaped for maximum cooling surface.

The ranger engine equipping this trainer captures a stream of air, feeds it back past the line of cylinders and expels it at the rear after artificially setting up tiny whirlwinds opposite each cylinder by means of what are called baffles.

German War Flyer Flees from U. S.

Franz Van Werra, under $10,000 Bond, Apparently Gone to Peru

WASHINGTON, April 22 (AP)—Attorney General Jackson announced today that Franz Van Werra, German war flyer who escaped a Canadian prison train, had fled the United States while under $10,000 bond and apparently had gone to Peru.

Declaring that Von Werra's flight while his case was under consideration "constitutes a flagrant abuse of neutral hospitality which had been invoked on his behalf," Jackson ordered a tightening of treatment in all similar cases.

Escapes from Canada

He sent these instructions to immigration officials and United States attorneys:

1. Any escaping prisoner of war must be turned back at the United States borders with whatever force is reasonably necessary.
2. Any escaped prisoner of war entering the United States must be held for instruction from the attorney general.
3. In no case may immigration authorities or United States attorneys agree to release such a prisoner in the custody of consular officers.

Von Werra had fled to the United States after his escape in Canada.

NEW YORK, April 22 (AP)—The German radio estimated tonight that British loss of life in the Grecian campaign from the sinking of over-crowded transports alone was 30,000.

Mammoth German Machines Crush English Equipment Like Eggshells, Writer Says

LONDON, April 22—Britain credited her sea and air units tonight with a coordinated series of blows against the Axis's vulnerable cross-Mediterranean connections, with these principal results:

Six supply ships and a destroyer hit and vast destruction wrought ashore in a forty-two-minute bombardment of Tripoli, Libyan capital, by the fifteen-inch guns of the battle fleet.

Three ammunition and supply ships, totalling 23,000 tons, torpedoed by naval aircraft.

Four troop transport planes shot down at sea.

Heavy damage done to Tripoli and other Libyan ports and airdromes—Fort Capuzzo, Bardia, Derna and Ain El Gazala—by the RAF and fleet air arm simultaneously with the naval shelling.

British battleships and lighter units drew up at 5 a. m. yesterday before Tripoli, principal African supply base of the Axis, and cast big shells into the harbor and port installations, the admiralty announced.

Supply Ships Torpedoed

Dust and smoke rose in blinding clouds, but observers saw that at least seven vessels in port were hit; that a large fire was started near an oil depot; that the railroad station was in flames; and that the Axis naval headquarters, military stores depot, power plant and a quay were struck.

Only "ineffective" opposition was encountered from shore batteries, the admiralty stated.

At the same time, the RAF and aircraft from the fleet were dropping more than ten tons of bombs into Tripoli.

The Mediterranean naval commander in chief also reported his aircraft torpedoed 10,000-ton and 6,000-ton supply ships and a 7,000-ton ammunition ship which blew up with such a tremendous explosion that fire roared 3,000 feet into the air.

BERLIN, April 23 (Wednesday)—German spearheads are within sight of historic Thermopylae Pass, German military commentators said early today, with the British in "full retreat" before them.

The German phase was that the fight had developed into a "verfolgung"—a following through after a break in resistance.

"And when we say we are following we mean the enemy is running," said a military spokesman.

With Adolf Hitler's Panzers rolled up before the fabled pass, the Nazi high command hoped to send them swiftly over the 100 miles to Athens and its port of Piraeus.

British Are Trapped

The Germans, at the Southern edge of the plain of the Salvi, seemed to be in position to cut off the approaches to Athens soon and if that is accomplished any British who might still be in the Northern part of the country would be cut off from the best harbors.

The Germans' Southwest thrust was said to have covered 103 kilometers (about sixty-five miles) in three days, which, Germans said, disposed of stories that they have suffered heavy losses.

"An enemy moving that fast does not have time to pause to set up a gun or conduct a rearguard action worthy of the name," a spokesman said.

Southern Soft Coal Operators Resume Wage Negotiations

Five Negotiators for Mine Owners Meet for First Time with UMW Group

NEW YORK, April 22 (AP)—Southern soft coal operators, in response to urging by President Roosevelt, resumed wage negotiations tonight with the United Mine Workers of America (UMW).

Five negotiators for the owners, headed by L. E. Eversole, Gaines, of Beckley, W. Va., met with a five-man UMW committee, led by John L. Lewis, president of the union, for the first time since the southerners bolted the eight-state Appalachian wage conference April 11.

Also at the conference was Dr. John R. Steelman, director of the U. S. Conciliation Service.

Northern mine owners, who have initiated a contract agreeing to a $7 basic daily wage—$1 a day more than the previous contract established—planned to meet with the union tomorrow at 10 a. m. to learn of tonight's developments.

Lewis has said the northern contract can not become effective until the southern operators also sign. The southerners separated from the Appalachian conference over the $7 wage which would eliminate a southern differential of forty cents and force the southerners to increase their daily wage $1.40.

They agreed to resume negotiations after conferring last night and today with Major General E. M. Watson, presidential secretary. While they were cloaked with Watson last night, President Roosevelt issued a formal statement saying "bituminous coal production must be resumed, and promptly." The mines have been shut since April 1.

Nearly 200 More New Laws Go On Statutes Today

Governor O'Connor To Affix Signature to Second Group of Bills

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 22 (AP)—Approximately 200 more new laws will be placed on statute books tomorrow when Governor O'Connor affixes his signature to a second group of bills approved by the attorney general's office.

Topping the legislation ready for signing are measures to speed up the condemnation of land for highway purposes, authorize the state roads commission to construct freeways and parkways and to liberalize the unemployment compensation benefits paid to the unemployed.

Other state-wide measures listed would divide the state industrial accident fund from the State Industrial Accident Commission, extend the coverage of compensation laws to include new diseases and to increase the authority of the State Real Estate Commission.

Hearings Start Thursday

Thursday the governor will begin a series of hearings on controversial legislation. The bills which O'Connor has set down for hearings include ones which would permit the issuance of bonds for the construction of a new $30,000,000 Baltimore-Washington highway; give Montgomery county a monopoly in the sale of beer within its borders; liberalize the law limiting the weight of trucks using highways; permit the issuance of bonds for Allegany county school construction and out-law the "nut" system of taxicab operation in Baltimore.

The majority of the 103 bills signed into law by O'Connor several days ago were local measures. A larger number of the measures up for signing tomorrow are state-wide in scope.

200 Bills Checked

The 200 bills listed for action were checked by the attorney general's office for errors and approved. O'Connor has been studying them during the last few days.

Under present highway condemnation procedure, appeals by property owners from jury awards added to the delay the highway commission is experiencing in attempting to obtain land. The commission would not have to wait until the disposition of an appeal under the new bill. It could obtain the land, making further settlement if the appeal were sustained.

The unemployment compensation measure would decrease the period applicants for unemployment compensation must wait before they are eligible for benefits. It also would give them increased benefits, approximately $2,200,000 more than heretofore.

McLean Reelected Chief Executive Associated Press

NEW YORK, April 22 (AP)—Robert McLean of the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin was re-elected president of the Associated Press today at a meeting of the board of directors. It is his third term. The board also re-elected E. Lansing Ray of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat as first vice-president, and Stuart H. Perry of the Adrian (Mich.) Telegram as second vice-president.

Other officers re-elected were: Kent Cooper, general manager of the Associated Press, secretary.

Lloyd Stratton, assistant secretary.

L. F. Curtis, treasurer. Named to the executive committee were: Paul Bellamy, Cleveland Plain Dealer; E. H. Butler, Buffalo News; Robert McLean, Philadelphia Evening Bulletin; Frank B. Marshall Praises Army

The President's conference came toward the close of a day in which General George C. Marshall, the chief of staff, told the Senate Defense investigating committee that the War department had "gotten over the hump" now and a "tremendous army" was developing. His morale, he added, was the "highest" he had ever seen.

Lt. Gen. Harry L. Twaddle testified that the department had been drawing up plans for an army of 2,800,000, for use if Congress should decide upon such a force. Present plans call for an army of 1,418,000 by June 30.

In addition to his comment on the general war situation, Mr. Roosevelt announced he was calling a three-day nutrition conference for May 26. Nutrition, he said, was an important part of the defense program and while there was an abundance of food there was still a nutrition problem because many people were not receiving the right kind of food.

Dempster Makes Reply to Seidel

BALTIMORE, April 22 (AP)—Byrd N. Dempster, Maryland NYA administrator, said today that Maryland school officials, failing to do an efficient job with the national defense training program, have laid down a "smoke screen" of criticism against the NYA program in an effort to escape public censure.

Referring to a statement by John K. Seidel, assistant state director of vocational education in which it was charged that NYA officials were responsible for labor shortage in arms work in not urging NYA youths to attend vocational defense training classes, Dempster said:

"This kind of thing is for the purpose of hiding the failure of the schools to move promptly and efficiently to secure the necessary equipment to do the job assigned to them."

Dempster charged school officials with long delays, particularly in Baltimore, in equipping shops and opening classes to train young men for defense industries.

Workers Have Narrow Escape in Baltimore Factory Fire

BALTIMORE, April 22 (AP)—A dozen workers narrowly escaped flames, started by a sudden explosion, which gutted a four-story building of the Waxaid Company in Baltimore's business section today.

Edward S. Boylston, head of the company who fled with his employees as fire quickly enveloped the structure, said, "It looks like almost a total loss."

James Murphy, a negro working on the top floor near the scene of the explosion, was forced to leap to the ground. He was not seriously injured.

Firemen, called by several alarms, threw up ladders to rescue Samuel Lee Norris and Wilbur Strong who had been working on the roof.

Boylston said the company, which makes various valves and pistons, held approximately $100,000 in government contracts. Early in the day, three homes were badly burned and a fourth damaged in a fire which forced twenty-six persons in South Baltimore to flee into the street. Behind the dwellings, flames swept sheds belonging to Fuld Brothers, disinfectant manufacturers and at one time threatened several tanks of inflammable insecticide.

Income Tax Payments Total $4,233,000

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 22 (AP)—Approximately $1,500,000 has poured into the state treasury in the seven days since the state income tax deadline, boosting total income tax receipts to $4,233,000 today.

State comptroller J. Millard Tawes said the total sum was realized from 90,640 taxable returns. He expects the yield to reach the $4,500,000 mark of the $6,500,000 goal by this week-end.

He estimated that between 12,000 and 15,000 last-minute returns were yet to be tabulated. The $6,500,000 is not expected to be realized until late fall because the tax may be paid in quarterly installments, the last of which is due Dec. 15.

More than $2,581,000 had been collected in income taxes before the deadline April 15. The comptroller's office made another bank deposit today of $157,986 contained in 4,600 returns, which brought the total yield to $4,233,000.

Taxes said to date 2,399 corporations paid in $916,286; 86,599 resident individuals $3,256,463; 406 non-resident individuals $13,001; 300 fiduciaries $35,301; 828 tax withheld at source returns $10,124 and 39 amended returns $823.

to $18,000—twenty-nine per cent; $18,000 to $20,000—thirty-one per cent; $20,000 to $22,000—thirty-three per cent; $22,000 to $26,000—thirty-six per cent; and on up to $50,000 to $60,000—fifty-one per cent; $70,000 to $80,000—fifty-seven per cent; $100,000 to $150,000—sixty-two per cent; $500,000 to $1,000,000—seventy-two per cent, over $5,000,000—seventy-five per cent.

In addition to the surtax plan for individuals, the treasury would add to the present twenty-four per cent normal corporation tax a six per cent surtax.

In the case of both individuals and corporations, the treasury was reported to have explained to the House Ways and Means committee in closed session that higher surtaxes instead of normal taxes were proposed because surtaxes apply to the income from partially exempt federal securities while the normal taxes do not.

It was said that the new surtaxes would greatly increase the income tax bill of banks and insurance companies which are heavy owners of federal bonds.

The individual income surtaxes would be increased most in the lowest and middle brackets and would remain the same as at present on incomes of $750,000 and more. The highest rate would continue to be seventy-five per cent (plus the surtax) in incomes of more than $5,000,000.

Next to the individual income taxes, estimated to produce about three-sevenths of the $3,000,000,000 goal, the corporation taxes would yield the highest amount. The corporation surtax was estimated to yield $1,000,000 to which would be

False Economy Is Blamed for Some Forest Fire Loss

BALTIMORE, April 22 (AP)—Some of the homes, farm buildings and valuable woodlands lost in recent forest fires were destroyed by a "false economy," State Forester F. W. Besley declared today.

"Due to a cut in funds allowed in the state budget for this department we have been unable to provide sufficient fire-fighting tools and equipment to handle large fires," Besley said. "Help was available but the tools to make a backfire, and effectively stop the spread of the fire, were not."

Walter J. Quick, assistant state forester, said "we had ample manpower" to fight the big Anne Arundel county blaze, "but half of those men had no equipment, and we had none to give them."

Besley praised the volunteers who aided the regular fire fighters, declaring they did the best they could under the circumstances and in view of equipment available. He added:

"This department asked for additional funds to buy such equipment as would have been of maximum value Sunday, but the department's budget requests were whittled down so that enough funds were not allowed to meet this need."

He said knapsack pumps and fire axes especially were needed. Besley pointed out that the forestry department "now has only fifteen forest guards, were formerly we had forty-five."

Small formations of RAF bombers, often without fighter escorts, flew to the attack again and again, but they could not break the lightning Nazi supply lines.

British officers had conceded that the Imperial army under General Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, dispatched to Greece in March, was scarcely adequate to attempt an even defensive struggle against the huge Wehrmacht unless reinforcements arrived later—after Africa had been made secure against the Axis.

But the German thrust in Libya upset British plans for reinforcements—although a small force of Poles and other non-British volunteers reached Greece as late as last Tuesday.

Most Greek divisions were needed to defend the Albanian line against Italy. What few could be spared resisted almost superhumanly on the Yugoslav and Bulgarian frontiers when the Nazis made their initial lunge into Greece.

For nine days they fought there while the Anzac brigades of their Allies fought their way out of the Kozae-Katerini sector and the British GHQ reorganized a line which, obviously, did not take full account of the dangerous Bitol gap.

The exact number of soldiers the British landed is a closely guarded secret, still, but they seemed to be chiefly tall, heavily-muscled Anzacs, a smattering of British coldstream guards and some other equally famous regiments.

Best unofficial estimates placed the force at 60,000; it was informed by one source, "fifty to eighty thousand."

It is an army on wheels, with hundreds of tanks and Bren-gun carriers and lorries.

British legion sources originally had expected 150,000 British troops would be available to turn back the initial German drive and that another 150,000 would be available to clinch a Balkan foothold on the continent.

Many Greek officers had never been that optimistic, however, and were aware that the British at the start would be able to hold only a comparatively small sector.

Feared Nazis Invincible

This they were fatalists—with steel nerves. They feared the German army was invincible in their case, but they were determined to sell their lives dearly for the honor of Greece.

Over and over again I heard them say this long before the Germans joined the Italians in the Greek invasion; on the rocky heights above Tepelini, in machine-gun dugouts on the shores of Lake Ohrid.

In Athens, the German legation all along was a clearing-house of espionage, or at least it was until the day the German military attaché, who is half-English by birth, was discovered circulating in the Anzac encampments in civilian clothes. Thus the high command was well-informed as to what the British had.

Yet when the fighting started King George II quashed rumors of a pro-German coup d'état by taking all the reins of power in his own hands.

And days after King Peter of Yugoslavia had flown from Sarajevo to Athens, then to British Africa, the Greeks withheld his proclamation, announcing his departure from national soil and thanking the Allied armed forces for a valiant fight for Greece's cause.

The pilots who took the young king to Athens with Premier Dusan Simovic last Friday disclosed they dodged not only the Nazi air patrols; they struggled, too, to evade Greco-British anti-aircraft fire.

The plane in which they flew was made in Germany.

Three times the men—with one exception—marched back in again for some more sleep.

The exception Pvt. Michael A. George, who moved his bed to the company street.

WASHINGTON COUNTY MUSIC SUPERVISOR DIES IN ACCIDENT

HAGERSTOWN, April 22 (AP)—Miss Helen Crahan, supervisor of music in Washington county elementary schools, was fatally injured this afternoon when her automobile collided with a truck on the downstate pike about five miles from here.

Miss Crahan died at the Washington county hospital of a skull fracture several hours after the crash.

Officers here said they were told that Miss Crahan emerged in her car from a lateral road into the path of the truck which carried a load of bricks.

Miss Crahan's home was in Homer, N. Y., where her mother survives. She studied in France for five years and later, studied at the Julliard school in New York. She graduated from Columbia college in 1935 where she received her bachelor and master degrees. For the past two years she had been music supervisor here.

Officers here said they were told that Miss Crahan emerged in her car from a lateral road into the path of the truck which carried a load of bricks.

Small formations of RAF bombers, often without fighter escorts, flew to the attack again and again, but they could not break the lightning Nazi supply lines.

British officers had conceded that the Imperial army under General Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, dispatched to Greece in March, was scarcely adequate to attempt an even defensive struggle against the huge Wehrmacht unless reinforcements arrived later—after Africa had been made secure against the Axis.

But the German thrust in Libya upset British plans for reinforcements—although a small force of Poles and other non-British volunteers reached Greece as late as last Tuesday.

Most Greek divisions were needed to defend the Albanian line against Italy. What few could be spared resisted almost superhumanly on the Yugoslav and Bulgarian frontiers when the Nazis made their initial lunge into Greece.

For nine days they fought there while the Anzac brigades of their Allies fought their way out of the Kozae-Katerini sector and the British GHQ reorganized a line which, obviously, did not take full account of the dangerous Bitol gap.

The exact number of soldiers the British landed is a closely guarded secret, still, but they seemed to be chiefly tall, heavily-muscled Anzacs, a smattering of British coldstream guards and some other equally famous regiments.

Best unofficial estimates placed the force at 60,000; it was informed by one source, "fifty to eighty thousand."

It is an army on wheels, with hundreds of tanks and Bren-gun carriers and lorries.

British legion sources originally had expected 150,000 British troops would be available to turn back the initial German drive and that another 150,000 would be available to clinch a Balkan foothold on the continent.

Many Greek officers had never been that optimistic, however, and were aware that the British at the start would be able to hold only a comparatively small sector.

Feared Nazis Invincible

This they were fatalists—with steel nerves. They feared the German army was invincible in their case, but they were determined to sell their lives dearly for the honor of Greece.

Over and over again I heard them say this long before the Germans joined the Italians in the Greek invasion; on the rocky heights above Tepelini, in machine-gun dugouts on the shores of Lake Ohrid.

In Athens, the German legation all along was a clearing-house of espionage, or at least it was until the day the German military attaché, who is half-English by birth, was discovered circulating in the Anzac encampments in civilian clothes. Thus the high command was well-informed as to what the British had.

Yet when the fighting started King George II quashed rumors of a pro-German coup d'état by taking all the reins of power in his own hands.

And days after King Peter of Yugoslavia had flown from Sarajevo to Athens, then to British Africa, the Greeks withheld his proclamation, announcing his departure from national soil and thanking the Allied armed forces for a valiant fight for Greece's cause.

The pilots who took the young king to Athens with Premier Dusan Simovic last Friday disclosed they dodged not only the Nazi air patrols; they struggled, too, to evade Greco-British anti-aircraft fire.

The plane in which they flew was made in Germany.

Doctor Advocates Use of Adrenalin in Testing Men

Would Eliminate Draftees Suffering from Nervous Disorders

By FRANK E. CAREY

BOSTON, April 22 (AP)—Use of a shell-shock testing chemical to help eliminate nervous sufferers with "soldiers' heart" from the nation's training army was advocated today before the American College of Physicians.

The chemical is adrenalin, a secretion of the human adrenal glands that is poured out under the influence of certain emotions, such as fear.

Dr. John T. King, of Johns Hopkins University, said injections of the substance into men of a certain physical and mental make up had reproduced a reaction similar to that seen in soldiers suffering from "soldiers' heart" or "neuro-circulatory asthenia," a form of so-called shell shock.

Dr. King said the studies indicated that soldiers susceptible to such symptoms as unstable blood pressure and trembling during active duty were sensitive to their own adrenalin, and that an injection of that substance might be used as a test for the ailment of men suspected of having it.

"To eliminate this disorder entirely from the army now being built up," he said, "would be an almost impossible task, but in case of doubt the adrenalin test should be employed."

He suggested that prospective selectees who fall into the suspected class should receive an injection of eight drops of adrenalin. If the pulse goes up ten points and the blood pressure the same degree, he said, such a prospect should be rejected.

Dr. King declared that in the World War sufferers from the ailment were not limited to men in the front line trenches, but included many soldiers who never heard the rumble of guns.

In the latter class, he said, were men who had some previous acute infectious illness, such as pneumonia, those who were constitutionally inferior in a physical or mental sense, and others who developed heart symptoms as a result of physical or emotional strain for which they were not equipped.

Troops Ready

sweeping into Southern Greece.

Far to the West, beyond the Pindus range, weary Greek warriors backing out of Albania were admitted to be in difficulties, too. They were pressed by the Italians on the north and menaced by Nazi armored divisions on their Eastern flank.

Greeks in West Trapped

Berlin announced that German mechanized troops had crossed the Pindus mountains to Ioannina, Key Road city, and had cut off the Greek retreat in the West.

Poor communications and rough terrain hampered the Western army.

But the Eastern troops braced at Thermopylae also faced a gigantic and critical task at the spot where King Leonidas in 480 B. C. died with his Spartans in a heroic but unsuccessful attempt to stem a Persian onslaught.

Adjustment of British lines was made "without serious interference from the enemy, who has been roughly handled wherever met," a British army communiqué said.

In Leonidas' day Thermopylae was only a few yards in width, but today the pass affords a battle-ground of from one to three miles wide. Railway and road communications extending from Lamia, twenty miles to the North (which the Germans say they have occupied) lead to Athens and its Port, Piraeus.

Port of Piraeus Bombed

Piraeus has been under grueling air attacks for days and at dawn Athenians again awoke to the roar of a mass Nazi bombardment of the waterfront area which feeds the embattled Allied forces.

The heavily outnumbered RAF shot down twenty-two planes from the Greek sky Sunday and lost only seven planes. It was announced.

Free French pilots are fighting with the British airmen.

In their retreat across the plains of the Saly the Allied troops were under a relentless air attack, but a correspondent with the British said little actual damage was done.

Troopers tumbled into roadside ditches to escape machine-gun bullets loosed by the low-flying ditches to escape machine-gun bullets loosed by the low-flying planes. Adequate anti-aircraft batteries were all too few to stem off the attacking waves, the correspondent reported.

from the United States has been reported from Washington.

Such an eventuality had been covered in previous negotiations between Canada, Britain and the United States, he said, and it had been arranged to have a destroyer attempt to intercept the ship on which he escaped.

The Washington dispatch said that Von Werra apparently had gone to Peru. It did not state what means of transportation he used.

Army Officials Considering Plans To Get Trainees To Stay in Army

May Try To Keep Men in Training for "Duration of the Emergency"

WASHINGTON, April 22 (AP)—Army officials were reported today to be considering a plan to induce thousands of selective service trainees to remain in uniform voluntarily for two years beyond the compulsory one-year period.

The proposal, army men said, might involve increasing the total land forces beyond the present goal of 1,418,000 men by mid-1941.

Some senators said they had heard unconfirmed reports that the army might seek legislation to keep draftees in training "for the duration of the emergency." However, sources in the War department inclined to the view that needed combat strength could be raised without resorting to new draft legislation—perhaps by offering re-enlistment bonuses to the ablest draftees.

Hope Trainees Remain

Hope was voiced that a large percentage of trainees would like army service sufficiently to continue in khaki without added inducement.

In case of war, it was said, the 473,000 regular army troops would be spread dangerously thin along coastlines, through the island possessions and Alaska, and in the Atlantic base sites recently acquired from Britain.

The opinion was expressed that perhaps 400,000 men should be added to the regular army from the ablest of selective service men. This would necessitate upward revision of the total-strength objective of 1,418,000 by June 30, on which congressional appropriations have been based.

One inducement under consideration was the offering of bonuses, perhaps exceeding the $75 and $150 gratuities now given soldiers who sign up for new "hitches."

Trying To Hold Men

Senator Johnson (D-Colo.) member of the Military committee, told news men he had heard reports originating in army circles that Congress would be asked to declare a complete state of emergency, under which conscripts would be held in service until the end of the emergency. He expressed the opinion that it would be unfair to require more than one year's training of selectees when other eligible registrants had not been called.

Senator Reynolds (D-NC) acting committee chairman, said he had heard similar reports of an extension, but added that no decision was likely until June.

man said. "When the full story is told the world will be astounded at the small German losses."

It is one thing to win a military victory, such as was won when Larisa was taken and the passes south of Mount Olympus were forced, but another matter to exploit such a victory to the best advantage, the military commentator continued.

Lamia, old citadel near Thermopylae, is occupied by the German troops, the high command announced. Now—should the Germans repeat the strategy they used in Yugoslavia—they will throw a noose of Panzer divisions about Greece's neck, between the Gulf of Lamia and the Gulf of Corinth.

Such a maneuver, if successful, would isolate some British and Greek forces along the lower Pindus mountains, such as the Serbian troops were trapped in the mountains area between Sarajevo and Mostar just before their final surrender.

Simultaneously such strategy might be calculated to cut off what the Germans claim is the British "Second Dunkerque" route toward the port of Athens and other points of embarkation.

Greek Harbors Jammed

DNB, German official news agency, said Nazi reconnaissance planes found Eastern Greek harbors already packed with ships of all sizes—including motor boats, cutters and small craft—busy shipping British troops out of the country.

The news agency said columns of troops clogged the roads leading to the ports, harassed by the Luftwaffe.

Important points already claimed by the Germans in the campaign of encirclement, extending across Greece, are Ioannina, on the West, and Larisa and the Port of Volos on the East.

Ioannina was taken by German troops who swept Westward across the Pindus, trapping Greek divisions retreating South from Albania. (Apparently, the Germans reached Ioannina well before the Italians, who were proceeding toward it from the North.)

It was believed possible the British would make some stand in the Lokris mountains south of Lamia, but Berlin sources said their resistance was weakening.

The British South of the Thermopylae area still have the German Stukas to take into account before they can embark for Egypt or Mesopotamia, Wilhelmstrasse observers said.

Some 40,000 tons of shipping, mostly troop transports, were declared to have been sunk by these dive-bombers in the last forty-eight hours.

Authorities denied vehemently that Athens had been bombed by the Luftwaffe, but made no secret that Piraeus harbor facilities and shipping had been blasted, with more punishment in prospect.

Republicans Are Active In Patriotic Opposition

GRATIFYING RESPONSE has resulted from Representative Joseph W. Martin's call for action to preserve the two-party system in this country. Republicans in Congress and throughout the nation have taken steps to revitalize their party.

On the heels of this plea to perform the "thankless but patriotic and essential task of opposing and auditing" the New Deal, Republicans in Congress have served notice that they propose to point out waste, extravagance and discrimination in connection with the construction of army cantonments.

Representative Albert Engel, Michigan Republican on the House Appropriations committee, revealed the first two reports of investigations he had made of a number of the army camps. These concerned Camp Blanding in Florida and Fort George G. Meade in this state. Others soon will follow.

Republican action regarding such matters led the House Military Affairs committee to institute an investigation into all national defense contracts.

Meanwhile Representative Martin reappointed the Republican Agricultural Study Committee to inquire into the farmers' plight as a result of the war condition. This committee will explore thoroughly the entire farm situation, holding hearings in many parts of the country.

Another important thing to which attention is being given, is the necessity for applying reasonable economy in all non-defense expenditures and activities. In view of the enormous cost of the national defense program and the imminence of further severe tax burdens, it is quite evident that economy be applied where it can be applied. Unfortunately, the whole operation of the national government has been placed on a war basis; yet it is plain that the defense program can be strengthened and advanced by eliminating waste, duplicated effort and unnecessary work in non-defense operations.

Simultaneously with these activities in Congress, the Republican National Committee headquarters and many state committee have expanded their efforts to bring to the attention of the people the results of the party's "poling and auditing" of the New Deal defense program.

All citizens can approve this work, as it is obvious that a loyal, patriotic and constructive opposition is needed now as never before in the history of this country, if our republican governmental processes are to be retained unimpaired.

A Special Observance For Boys and Girls

AS communities throughout the United States will observe National Boys and Girls' week April 26 to May 3, inclusive, some advance information about it is of interest.

The week's activities will stress such important phases of youth development as spiritual guidance, education, vocational training, hobbies, citizenship, recreation, home life, and health and safety. The main objectives of the week is to focus public attention upon boys and girls, their problems and their needs, with the ultimate aim of fostering and stimulating community activities directed toward greater welfare of the younger generation.

The observance of National Boys and Girls' week had its beginning twenty-one years ago when the Rotary club of New York city sponsored a Boys' week. The idea spread so rapidly that by 1926 the observance was celebrated throughout the United States and Canada. The week's program is not confined to larger cities but is actively participated in by thousands of smaller communities. The result has been a greatly increased community interest in the welfare of boys and girls; and the work of organizing a local observance has drawn various community agencies together in such a way as to make them realize the advantage of year round co-operative effort in behalf of their boys and girls.

Weir and the Freezing Of Steel Prices

MUCH CONCERN is being manifested over the freezing of steel prices. There are those who fear that it may be the first step toward complete control of all prices during the defense emergency and that this would result in disastrous consequences.

It is of interest, therefore, to note that Ernest T. Weir, chairman of the National Steel Corporation, Republican national officer and bitter New Deal foe, feels that the ceiling for steel prices is well worth the experiment and that, if it should be found impracticable or impossible, it can be rectified after due trial. Inasmuch as the way to that end has been left open.

Weir feels that the steel industry should wait and take the second quarter of the year, when it will have higher wages and other increased costs to pay, and then decide just what its position and its requirements are. Every company can show the cost and selling price on each product, he said, and these facts can then be presented to the price administrator and to the public.

Weir's ten-cents an hour increase in wages to employees of his corporation is held chiefly responsible for the agitation over the price problem. But he believed the increase justified. "The real reason we gave the increase," he said, "was because we felt our employees were entitled to the advance. There had been general improvement in our position and we believed our employees should share in the betterment." He does not believe this advance in wages will be responsible for inflation, regardless of reports to the contrary.

The steel leader gave a rather tart but appropriate answer to the reports that National Steel's wage action was done to embarrass United States Steel. "The affairs of National Steel are not handled on a grudge basis," he retorted. Few successful concerns are so based.

Weir's position as to the freezing of steel prices seems fair enough. As he says, it is probably impossible for anyone in the industry to say definitely now whether a price increase is necessary, as, so far, it has all been conjecture without supporting facts. He believes it is well enough to wait for the facts. It is a fair and tolerant stand.

Britain Needs Only To Hold Out

EVEN should Great Britain lose the Mediterranean, its prestige and perhaps its morale would suffer, but would the realization of this the last conclusion of a pessimistic imagination, spell the end for the nation? It would not.

To suppose it would be to mistake entirely the character of the present conflict. This is a war in which one side, Germany, must win completely, whereas the other side, England, need only hold out over a period of time until its enemy collapses. Hitler has himself realized this and has said again and again that for his regime to survive he must be master not of his nation alone, not of the continent of Europe alone, but of the world. Only so will he be able to hold in abeyance the powers which he has aligned against himself through his policy of force and servitude.

It is England's task at the moment simply to hold out. Whether it succeeds or fails now in a military campaign, conducted against great odds in order to establish a foothold on the continent, is, in the perspective of the war as a whole, not of drastic importance.

For as long as it stands, so long as the life line between America and itself is kept open, Hitler's position is as precarious as it was on the day on which he first invaded Poland. The nations under him are today seething with revolt. If England can, with America's help, be maintained, that rebellion will rise eventually to flood tide and Hitler's Europe, whatever its compass, will topple.

For as long as there is anywhere in the world a single free nation to keep before the eyes of those enslaved the vision of freedom and the hope of its attainment, there is no force in existence capable of keeping the world in bondage. Freedom must be entirely stamped out, or it will in the end be victorious.

The Contradictions About Unemployment

AMERICA'S EMPLOYMENT PICTURE shows sharp contradictions as industries are begging for more skilled workers and at the same time a million men are asking to be placed on WPA projects. More jobless men than ever are reported to be hunting work in areas where large defense orders are concentrated.

Students of the employment trend explain these contradictions in the following four points: (1) Huge defense orders piled up in a few areas and the slow diffusion of these orders through sub-contracts has not reached the areas where most WPA men are located; (2) WPA men lack training for the work that is open; (3) WPA workers are older than most industries like to employ; (4) new workers have flocked to the areas of defense projects, thus giving them the appearance of more unemployment than ever.

Government statisticians estimate that between five and six million new jobs are coming up in the next two years and that there are now eight million unemployed. Thus the prospect is that unemployment will be reduced to three millions. But with the big work program faced by the nation, it is a pity it cannot be wiped out altogether.

Nowadays European nations sign pacts of eternal friendship, which means forever—or, at least, until the ink has dried on the treaty.

The final proof of charm is to interrupt everybody who tries to say something and still remain unharmed.

Victorious Fly!

By MARSHALL MASLIN

We lay, the three of us, on a low wharf in a high lake, and watched a single insect fighting for his life in the blue-green water below us.

The three of us, at ease with the world after a swim in the cold water, lying on our stomachs there, letting the pure rays of the sun warm us from shoulder blade to chest. . . . Purring with content. Glad just to be alive. Without a care. Hundreds of miles away from the turmoil and tragedy of another life. . . . With nothing to do but look at a little blue-winged fly that had fallen into the water and had been washed away from the shore, and was struggling to get back again.

There he was, three feet from a wet rock on the bank. Working his small feet. Moving slowly, inch by inch, landward. . . . On he came, steadily, until he was almost within touching distance. And then a motorboat went by, far out in the lake, and we could see the ripples from its passage sweeping remorselessly in. . . . Would they reach the fly before he reached land? And if they did, would they toss him in or would they draw him "out to sea" again?

Lazily we watched. And lazily we wondered. And lazily we saw that small wave come up under the struggling fly and pull him out from shore—with all the long struggle to be repeated. . . . And lazily we watched the little feet paddle and the drenched insect battle for his precious life.

Over and over it happened. The struggle. The defeat. The renewed struggle. The pending defeat. . . . At last, and between the coming of two wavelets, he touched the wet rock and set his feet on something solid and slowly crawled up to collapse in the warm sun, and lie there for a breathing space—defenseless, you mortal beings, but triumphant.

Don't ask me what he knew, don't ask me what he thought! All I know is that a fly in the mountain lake, encompassed about by perils equal to any that we might know, struggled for life against enormous odds and drew on a precious determination within himself, and won a mighty victory over cruel Death. . . . And not one of us, at that instant, would have laid a destroying hand on that victorious fly!

Inflation Check Must Have Start, Gen. Johnson Says

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, April 22—The almost unanimous press and editorial query on Gen. Johnson's bold ceiling over steel prices was "how can you do that and not put a ceiling over both wages and the price of everything else which contributes not only to the cost of steel but also to the great composite of all prices which makes up the price for cost of living?"

The answer to that one is easy. It is "You can't." Nobody knows that better than Mr. Henderson. But a start had to be made somewhere and he moved courageously and immediately to start it where it would do the most good. He did it intelligently on a formula that must govern all price-ceilinging—Stop here, if there are cases of individual hardship, bring them in and we will permit adjustments to prevent confiscation. The only other way is to let all prices sky-rocket—as they will in war—and try to punish the unjust profiteers as their prices get too far ahead.

Would Lose Control

That is locking the stable after the horse is stolen. It is losing any possibility of control in the torrential whirlpool of inflation. Once that process starts in all its infinity of infinitesimal streams, no matter how strong the control, it is like a lion roaring against a great swarm of locusts sweeping down to overwhelm him. A few stick in his mane or are even swallowed but the swarm drifts over him and he is powerless to check it.

Mr. Henderson could stop this principal stream of inflationary influence for long enough to look around, by various indirect authorities—priorities of transportation and supply and the threat of commandeering. He couldn't stop them all because he has not as yet sufficient statutory authority. He should be granted that authority without one day of unnecessary delay.

Baruch's Formula

It is simpler than it sounds. Here is the form of statute offered in 1931 by B. M. Baruch, a man who has more personal war-time economic experience than any other living person. It authorized the president to set a day, the entire existing price structure of which should serve as a "ceiling" and then provided that thereafter, "the highest market price, as of such proclaimed day, at any place within the United States for any service, right or thing, except for the fee estate in real property, shall be deemed to be the fair market price for the same or a similar service, right or thing at the same place or in similar circumstances x x x and thereafter, x x x it shall be unlawful for any person to buy, sell or otherwise contract for any service, right or thing at a price higher than fair market price in effect as of such day."

Rectification Provided

This is no "freezing" of prices or "fixing" of prices except as they were "fixed" by normal economic influences before abnormal war influences moved in to distort the normal price pattern. It merely fixes a "ceiling" over both price and wages. They will fall as they may beneath that ceiling.

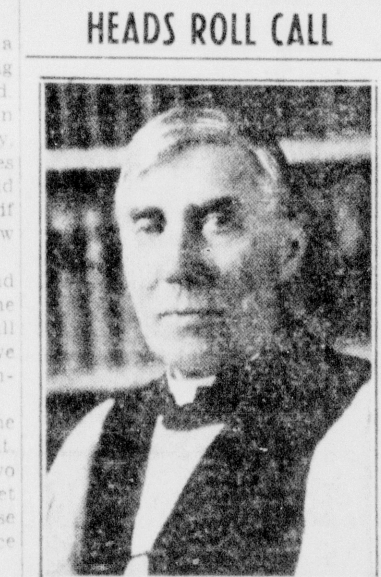

If any groups can show a real justification for an increase in price of their product above that ceiling—and many can—the proposed statute provided for that by a simple and swift procedure.

The "expository" statute also proposed methods for the immediate rectification with "just compensation" of any inadvertent or incidental confiscatory effect of its application.

Authority Need Now

Mr. Henderson should have that kind of authority "immediately if not sooner." What is being discussed here is, in the interest of the common man and the country as a whole, problem number one in these tragic times. What could be saved for our defensive strength and daily enjoyment by fair and competent price control as compared with what could be lost by price inflation and taxes piled upon taxes as heaven contrasted with hell. It might mean the difference between national

A TOUGH SPRING

Zone Restrictions at Army and Navy Camps Wouldn't Work, Dr. Doran Says

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

Agitation continues for the establishment of moral and dry zones around army and navy posts.

There can be no exaggeration of this problem. The first consideration of everybody should be to support, uphold and implement Mr. Henderson. His is the most important job in the government just now.

The Night Fighters

From the Charleston, W. Va., Daily Mail

The official British report that night fighters and ground defenses recently accounted for twenty-seven German planes in three nights would indicate that British defenses against night raiders have been considerably improved. The nature of the night fighters and the technique used to locate the raiders have not been disclosed, but it has been broadly hinted by the British that their specially equipped night fighter planes would continue to take a higher toll of the raiders.

Apparently the new type of planes accounted for more of the German bombers than did the ground defenses, indicating that the real answer to the high-flying night raid is the fighter plane. Of course intensive, long range anti-aircraft fire forces raiding planes to fly so high that bombing accuracy is greatly impaired but the defenders must send up planes if they expect to knock any considerable number of raiders out of the sky.

In view of the first successes of the night fighter planes, it may be expected that the British will continue to improve their special equipment and tactics. Just how far that process can be carried is not known at this time. But when it is considered that at the start of the intensive German air raids on England virtually the only night defenses were balloon barrages and anti-aircraft fire, it is apparent that the British have made great advances.

It is significant that although the British have been working to perfect, with considerable success, the night fighter, no news of similar development has emanated from Germany.

Imagination And Your Job

It May Lead To Better Things, Homer Croy Says

"There is hardly a job so routine, so dull, that interest can't be extracted from it," declares Homer Croy in Your Life Magazine. "Instead of complaining about your job, look at it in the bigger way. Say, 'Do I know all about it? Maybe it is a door to something important. And you'll be surprised what the use of a little imagination will do.'"

Marcus H. Brown was a truck driver for Mount Wilson observatory, near Los Angeles. Sometimes he watched workmen grinding lenses for telescopes. He was interested, studied the subject at night, became expert. When they needed a chief optician to grind the great lens for the 260-inch telescope, he was the man chosen. He had mixed imagination with his job and followed where it led him.

Dr. James Doran

Dr. James Doran, of the District of Columbia Chapter of the Rainbow Division of Veterans is inviting the contrary side throughout the country to funnel protests to its headquarters, promising to utilize "em" where they'll be most effective and to the best advantage.

Hotly Resented

The District's Rainbow chaps hotly resent the implication that soldiers and sailors "are any more in need of protection against tendencies toward drunkenness and immorality than any other group of men. It's an uncomplimentary and generally unjustified conception of the standards of these young Americans," adds the Rainbow boys' statement of their position.

Besides agreeing with the Rainbow chapter's estimate of the average decency of our soldiers and sailors, I've always had my doubts of the efficacy of legislation to regulate bad habits of a purely personal nature.

Nevertheless, I never had any experience in trying to enforce that sort of regulation. Consequently, before drawing any conclusions of my own relative to the pending controversy, I thought I ought to consult an expert, and the best one I know is Dr. James M. Doran. I've had occasion to quote him before, but this time I went into the subject with him quite deeply.

Enforced Dry Law

Back in the dry days, Doc Doran, an eminent chemist, was chief of our prohibition enforcement unit up to the time of repeal of the 18th amendment.

I don't believe the doc was a dry in principle. Anyway, I've joined him in an occasional drink since the amendment was abolished. Furthermore, upon its abolition he gravitated into the executive directorship of the Distillers' Institute, which wouldn't seem to imply that he's absolutely prohibitionistic.

Still, he's ardently for law enforcement, enforcing prohibition while it remained the law was his job, and he worked at it overtime and, beyond any question, sincerely.

His unit, under his management, confiscated moonshine by the hogheadful. It caught bootleggers right and left. Now and then it shot one, trying to make a getaway. Occasionally it shot a non-bootlegger by accident. Oh, nobody ever suspected that Doc Doran didn't do his damndest to make that law stick.

A Convenience

Some of the doc's underlings weren't such 100-percenters as he was. To a certain extent they had a convenience to bootlegging units. There was a lot of down-right poisonous moonshine in circulation in that era. If you bought a gallon of the stuff you were afraid to drink it, lest it kill you. But if you had some good friends in the prohibition unit, they'd analyze it for you, and then, if they okayed it, you could consume it, otherwise pour it down the sewer.

Never for a minute do I surmise that Doc Doran winked at this system, but I do have a hunch that he was aware of its existence, though he couldn't pin it on anybody, or he'd have fired the guy instantly. But his presumable knowledge of what was going on, though he couldn't prevent it, probably made him prohibitionally pretty skeptical.

How About Zones?

Well, I asked Doc Doran for his opinion of dry and morality zones around our army and navy posts. Would such zones keep our selectees out of mischief?

"Say," answered the doc, "you know how prohibition worked."

"So I did, in fact. That was a reply to that question. 'Now, as to other forms of vice,' the doc continued, 'If Uncle Sam could put meters on miscellaneous prohibited immoralities, and collect a tax on violations of his prohibitions, he could pay off the national debt in short order.'

"Zones!" The doc snorted. "What's to prevent the invasion of 'em in trailers?"

I inferred that Doc Doran's prohibition-unit-experience had disillusioned him very thoroughly as to the effectiveness of bad-habit-control by statute.

And, believe me, if he stands a chance, he's an extraordinarily resolute, would-be statute-enforcer, whether or not he believes in the statute he's endeavoring to make effective. I've seen him in action.

An Appealing Labor Policy

From the Charleston, W. Va., Daily Mail

While many of our national leaders, including those who are actively manning the national defense program, have expressed their opposition to legislation banning organized labor's right to strike, it is becoming increasingly apparent that some action must be taken to prevent unnecessary strikes. It is to the best interests of organized labor, management and the public that we not hastily sacrifice any of our more important democratic principles.

But the fact remains that if the impression becomes general that we must abandon some of those principles, such as the right to strike, out of self-protection, then the public will so demand. Stressing this aspect of the strike policy in defense industries, the Milwaukee Journal points out that the preventive remedies are up to congress. In the last two months, the Journal argues, the following essentials of such a national labor policy have evolved.

All strike votes to be placed under the supervision of government to prevent fraud. This would protect the workers from unscrupulous leadership as much as it would safeguard the national interest.

A minimum waiting period to elapse after a strike vote had been taken in order to give time for a factual study of the issues and an effort at conciliation. Jurisdictional and organizational strikes to be barred for

America Is Panned In Tactless Way By Sojourners

By EDWIN C. HILL

The Pan-American movement isn't confined to the Nelson Rockefeller Committee on Commercial and Cultural Relations. We've heard America being panned recently in quarters where one would least expect it and in which such criticism seems singularly tactless and ill-advised. We're reporting on the behavior of the

Any alert frequenters of the smart New York night spots will find you in on this. You will get even more details from the musical cognoscenti who frequent symphony and concert halls. Rich European refugees turn out en masse for musical affairs, and during the intermission you will find a close-in bundle of diamond tiaras giving the country the works. If the star performer happens to be a European, the cultural entente yields a bizzard of Annie Oakleys and half the house will be paper—and a marvelous field day for the hammer-trowers as they rate American music away down with the grind-organs.

Going Big in New York

Art salons haven't figured much in our cultural and intellectual diversions, but with the coming of the Riviera and the Rue St. Germain to our shores they're going great guns in New York. Frequently, they center around some unreconstructed embarrassment, and they, too, contrive much amused disparagement of our faltering efforts in this line.

We have put down the rough classification of "rich refugees." That is not an altogether precise description. By no means all of them are rich. Many of them had a bone buried over here, before the shooting started, but many others just act that way. A discerning woman friend of this writer, noted a stunning Latvian gown at a concert, but observed that it was a 1937 model. "But," my friend added charitably, "I admire her for keeping her flag flying. I don't think we ought to get cattish about a thing like that."

Whispered Hint Needed

I thoroughly agreed, but I did insist that someone ought to take the visiting ladies and gents gently in hand and whisper to them something about our ideas of seemingly behavior. It would be for their own good. We have another friend who is an elderly beau sabreur, with a spiked moustache and a morning coat, who speaks perfect French, bows from the hip, clicks his heels, kisses ladies' hands and gets about a lot among these elegant exiles. What, he is a wise and tolerant man.

I asked him whether these people thought they would recover their lost world, and how they thought this would be brought about. "Heavens knows what they think," he said, "if they think at all. But we should pity them and try to understand them. They have lived in their little insular world, with the illusion that theirs was a true cosmopolitan culture. Their secured incomes, their treasured little artifices of dress and behavior, their routine and patterned amusements and their cult of an esoteric and superior culture have isolated and immunized them from reality. And don't forget for a moment that they have terror in their hearts."

Are Not Important

"I think we can be infinitely forgiving and understanding. After all, they aren't important in the big sweep of events. It is true that there are among them some who were defeatists in France. But I don't see any 'Cliveden set' growing up around them here. That sort of refuge is much less confused and ignorant than these people and wouldn't make the fatal mistake of disparaging this country."

"Put it down to insularity and ignorance and if you write about them just make it a rap on the knuckles and not a round-house swing."

We know a hostess who let loose a real round-house swing on one of them a few weeks ago, but that's another story.

the period of the defense emergency. Wages, hours and bargaining conditions would constitute the only legitimate subjects of strike action.

Possibly there are improvements to be made on the suggested fundamentals for a national labor law for the duration of the emergency. But the Journal at least has suggested a simple, straightforward plan which would go far toward bringing order out of the existing chaos.

No more waiting period to elapse after a strike vote had been taken in order to give time for a factual study of the issues and an effort at conciliation. Jurisdictional and organizational strikes to be barred for

Quiz Kids Return To Home Bailiwick For Air Program

Boston Hopefuls Will Also
Be Heard in a Book
Feature

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD
Associated Press Radio Editor

NEW YORK, April 22—Again it is the Quiz Kids night on the radio. In the past these seem to come rather infrequently nowadays, what with all their Hollywood questing in the Benny show. This time, at 8:30 p.m. on NBC-Blue Wednesday night, they will be performing from their home-bailiwick, Chicago. Maybe they will have some comments about their trip to the Pacific coast.

Speaking of youth, the Children Are People, CBS-east at 3:45, is to present some young ones. They will be five Boston youngsters, who despite some their non-reading ages actually paid for reviewing books. They talk about "Books We Like."

Miss Bankhead a Guest

Eddie Cantor, proceeding his way on Wednesday nights on NBC-RED, has sent an invitation to Actress Tallulah Bankhead to make a special appearance. Herbert Rudley, the author, and his wife, Anne Loring, are to join her for Manhattan at Midnight, 10:30 p.m. on NBC-RED at 8:30, to play "Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Brown."

At 8:30 there is still more drama on CBS, it being another Jean Harlow story as Dr. Christian. It is "This Is the Trail," or eight boys out in the making.

War schedule: CBS 8-9 a.m., 3:35-4:30 p.m., 10:45 p.m., 12 mid.; NBC 8 a.m., 1:45 p.m., 12 mid.; NBC-BLUE 8:35 a.m., 4:55 p.m., 9:55 p.m.; NBC-RED 9 a.m., 6:25, 7:15 p.m.; MBS 10, 11, 12 a.m., 2, 5, 8:30, 10 p.m., 12:30 a.m.

LOCAL GIRL HONORED IN COLLEGE WORK

Miss Mary Elizabeth Exley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard L. Exley, 742 Fayette street, has been chosen with fifty other members of next year's senior class of New Jersey College for Women to be chairman of her dormitory.

New Jersey College for Women was one of the first colleges in the country to use a system of cottage dormitories, in which students may live together in small groups and form friendships with members of all four undergraduate classes. The chairmen are chosen for outstanding leadership and ability to assume responsibility.

The dean of students, who chooses the senior house chairmen, is responsible for all resident students, and she delegates responsibility to members of her staff who are resident directors on each of the three dormitory campuses. The resident directors in turn delegate authority to the house chairmen.

Miss Exley is a graduate of Allegheny high school and is majoring in art at New Jersey College for Women. She is a member of the Interfaith Committee of the Cooperative Government Association and was chairman of typing for this year's Junior show.

Mrs. James Orr Is Re-elected by Missionary Group

Named at Mountain Conference of Maryland Synod at St. Luke's

Mrs. James Orr, 544 Fairview avenue, was re-elected president of the Women's Missionary Society, Mountain Conference, of the Maryland Synod of the United Lutheran Church, yesterday at the twenty-seventh annual meeting at St. Luke's Lutheran church.

Mrs. Albert Schade was elected secretary of the society while the other officers were re-elected for another term. They are Mrs. A. G. Perdue, 33 Virginia avenue, vice-president; Mrs. Arthur J. Weber, 500 Oldtown road, treasurer; and Mrs. Walter Scheemesser, historian.

Yesterday's meeting was divided into two parts. In the afternoon an address by Mrs. B. C. Ritz, president of the Maryland Synodical, featured. Her talk was mainly on the work done during the past year by the society and an appeal for a continuance of this vital effort.

Mrs. Harry B. Fogle, treasurer of the Maryland Synodical, gave a short address on the affairs of her post.

Opened With Devotional
The session opened with a devotional service led by Mrs. Hixon T. Bowersox which was followed by an address of greetings to the members by Mrs. Holmes Cessna. Mrs. James Weakley made the response. Roll call of societies present was then made.

Reports of officers and department secretaries were given, officers elected for the new year and installed by Mrs. B. C. Ritz. Miss Vera Gurley and Mrs. John Schlunt gave a "Service of Remembrance." A missionary benediction ended the afternoon meeting.

A box luncheon was held in the church cafeteria during which presentation of promotional work was made by Mrs. Fred J. Eckert, promotional secretary of the Maryland Synodical.

Choir Sings Anthem
The Rev. H. Hall Sharp, D. D., opened the evening meeting with vespers services and the St. Luke's choir sang an anthem.

A detailed account of the life of a missionary in British Guiana by Mrs. Paul O. Machetzki, returned missionary, was the main feature of the evening session. Mrs. Machetzki told of her work among the negroes and other heathen peoples of that jungle country. Christ is the only salvation for these natives, she said.

THE DAILY STORY CALL ME DEAR

There Are Men a Girl Can Never Forget, but Helen Discovers There Are Better Things than Forgetting

By NIKKI KAYE

Helen caught Jay's eye in the mirror on the elevator and smiled. She looked at their combined reflections. . . . Jay so tall and dark and herself so tiny and blonde. Phillip had been shorter than Jay, and not nearly so handsome. Phillip and she had ridden in this elevator hundreds of times, so drunk with each other's presence that they hadn't even noticed the mirror. Phillip, strange that he, the least worthy of the men she had known, should be the only one with enough power to ease the

They got off the elevator and stood for a moment outside the door.

"This means a great deal to you doesn't it Helen?" Jay asked. "I mean, my meeting your friends tonight."

"Are you afraid I won't belong? Is that it?"

Helen shook her head. "No, I'm not afraid of that. Not with your charm. I just want you to like them. Jay, like them tremendously and I want them to like you, too. I hope they do, dear."

She reached out to press the bell but Jay's hands covered her own.

"Helen, I know this isn't the time or the place, but there's something I've got to know. You just called me dear. Did you mean it?"

Helen smiled. "You are dear to me, you know, and I never use meaningless words."

"There was someone else you called dear, wasn't there?" Jay persisted. "Someone who fit in with your friends perfectly. Isn't that true?"

Helen bit her lip. "We'll talk about it some other time, Jay. Let's go in."

The party was a great success. Jay made himself especially charming and Helen's face showed her delight. Everything would be all right, she kept telling herself. She would forget Phillip in time, and Jay was certainly an ideal companion. She loved him now—you couldn't help loving Jay, he was so thoughtful and considerate—and maybe she would forget Phillip altogether, in time.

She was standing under the large lamp when the doorbell rang and Phillip walked in. For one awful instant there was an intense silence, and then everyone began talking at once. They all knew, of course, all but Jay.

"Why had he come tonight, she wondered? He hadn't been here in over a year . . . not since he had walked out on her, saying, 'I'll never marry you, so let's forget the whole thing.' Hurt in pride and in heart, she had turned to Jay. And now, just when she was getting over the whole thing, Phillip again!"

"Will you get me a drink, dear?" she called across the room to Jay. Jay rose, but Phillip did too. The room wheeled for a moment.

"I'm sorry," Phillip mumbled. "You should be," Helen answered.

lightly as Jay left the room. "You of her. It contrasted badly with the right to that word Phillip's attitude."

Voices rose in waves around her. . . . like comfortable blankets her friends were putting around her shoulders to keep her from getting cold. She suddenly felt stifled, hurt, incredibly weary of the long months of play-acting for herself and for the world. She started for the inner room and Phillip followed her.

"What do you want, Phil?" she asked when they were alone.

"Nonsense. Why did you come here tonight?"

"I didn't know you'd be here. I just came to hear your name spoken . . . to hear them talk about you. It's been so long and I . . . well, I missed you."

"Have you?" Helen looked surprised. "You told me you didn't like being bound to anyone, remember? You told me no one but yourself could assume importance in your life. Those are your own words, Phil."

"And I meant them . . . at the time," Phillip said. "I tried to do without you, but I can't."

"What do you expect me to do now, Phil? Tell you all is forgiven—again? And then what?"

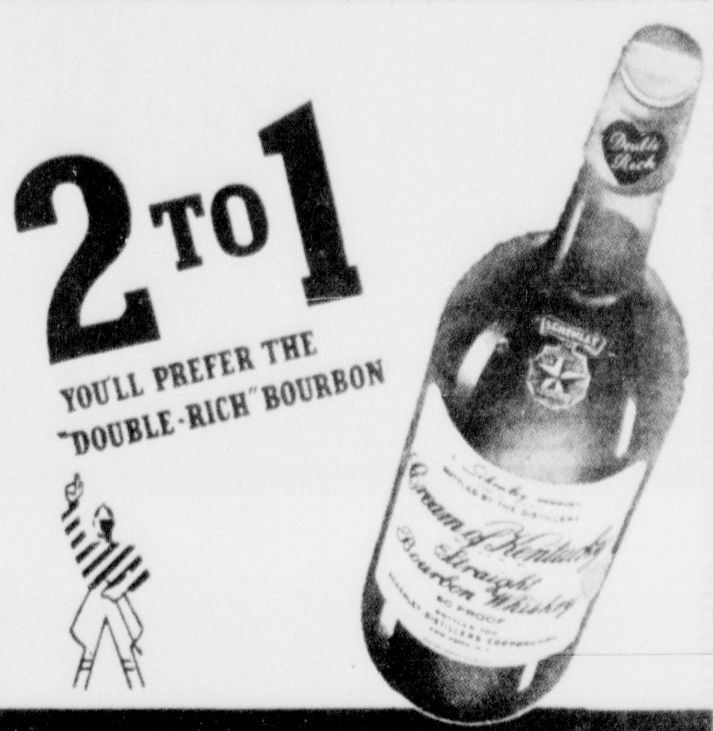

He shrugged his shoulders. "Well, I'll marry you, Helen."

Helen's head went up. "How noble of you," she said with finger nails in her voice. She thought of Jay and his tenderness, his protectiveness, his utter dependability, his worship

Punishment Is Always Problem For Parents

Spanking Not Necessary to Teach Child Proper Obedience

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Repeatedly I have urged in this column that the baby should learn the meaning of No as soon as he begins to toddle. I even recommended spanking for this purpose. I have also said that in the very early years just as soon as the child will stay where he is put for an allotted period, without being held or tied there, you can, and undoubtedly should, cease to spank him. A very effective substitute is for him to have to sit for a definite period as measured by the clock and always as so determined, and not "till I tell you to get down" in a comfortable chair with a footstool.

For a spanking to be effective it should follow the forbidden act immediately after its first occurrence and every time thereafter without exception. Unless these principles can pretty surely be applied to a particular situation spanking better not be chosen. Such acts as thumb-sucking, nail-biting should not be punished by spanking.

The Parent's Error

A mother in one of my parent classes at the university once enquired about her two-year-old who had been spanked for opening the ice box. She said, "The child soon learned not to open it when I was in the kitchen but will still open it while I am in another room or upstairs." Of course, her error was obvious. She would spank the child on finding what had hap-opened. But often he had long enjoyed at the forbidden pleasure before apprehension; sometimes he had succeeded without being caught. At all. The punishment was not immediate, nor without exception. He had learned to avoid the ice box permanently and automatically regardless of the mother's presence. Punishment which does not prove effectual enough to deter in your absence, as well as in your presence, is bad punishment.

The mother was advised not to tempt the baby by leaving him exposed to the ice box when he could open it without immediate discomfit; but to be with him always when he was near the ice box so that he would learn so well to avoid it that by and by he would avoid it automatically, even if she were to be away. Accordingly she would take the child with her on leaving the kitchen until such time as the habit of avoidance had been established without any doubt.

Notice too that I have never advised spanking or any other punishment to get the child to do what you want him to do. Pain prevents. Make pleasant what you want the little child to do, painful only what you want him never to do. Therefore rule out punishment in relation with eating and sleeping habits.

Solving Parent Problems
Q. Should a child attend public movies?
A. Yes. If the parent is careful in the selection of the movie and does not let him go too often.

Four Members Berkeley Public Assistance Council Resign

CHARLESTON, W. Va., April 22 (AP)—Governor Neely received today the resignation of four Berkeley county Public Assistance Council members who said they felt the state DPA directors had superseded their authority by distributing commodities to strikers.

State DPA director Raymond Kenny recently ordered the opening of a larger distribution center in Martinsburg, partly because of requests for aid from striking employees of the Interwoven Stocking Company.

The resignations, which it was understood would be accepted, came from P. W. Leiter and Tammell Hollis, Democrats, both of Martinsburg, and Dr. S. R. Diehl of Martinsburg and E. P. Gardner of Berkeley Hill, Republicans. The fifth member is Raymond Balenger, county court president.

Kenny said it "was not true" he had gone over the heads of council members.

"This department is not a department of labor relations," the DPA director added. "We're set up merely for the purpose of providing to the best of our ability and facilities for the needs of people."

"When we find people are in need, we give them assistance first and investigate afterwards."

One Out of Every Four West Virginians Is Church Member

CHARLESTON, W. Va., April 22 (AP)—Approximately one out of every four of the 1,901,974 men, women and children residing in West Virginia at the time of the 1940 census held a membership or was a communicant of the churches in the state.

The West Virginia Blue Book legislative handbook using data supplied by the U. S. Bureau of Census, shows that the state had a population including 491,607 persons interested in the church.

Of this total 132,607 were Methodists, 113,640 Baptist, 75,391 Roman Catholics, 35,046 Presbyterian and 27,747 United Brethren members.

There were 18,765 members of the Disciples of Christ church; 11,866 Protestant Episcopal; 8,499 Churches of Christ; 8,087 United Lutheran Church in America; 7,246 Church of the Brethren; 5,391 Jewish congregations; 4,200 Eastern Orthodox; and 42,486 belonging to various others.

'False Alarm' but School Head Burns

TRINIDAD, Colo. (AP)—When bad weather comes they no longer use the fire siren to signal "No school today" in Trinidad. There is less this story.

It was 8 a. m. on a cold, miserable day. The telephone at fire headquarters tinkled.

"This is School Superintendent

Ross," said a voice to the fire captain. "Please sound the siren to let people know there will be no school today because of the weather."

In time-honored fashion the signal blew. Children whooped, and stayed home.

Most surprised person in the city was Ross.

"Someone impersonated me," he said. "We won't use the siren any more."

Contempt of Court Proceedings Placed Against Mine Workers

CLAY, W. Va., April 22 (AP)—Charges of contempt of court and carrying firearms without permits have been filed against three United Mine Workers pickets arrested near Widen Sunday shortly after shots were fired into the town. Prosecutor Henry McClane said today.

The men are scheduled to receive a hearing tomorrow before Magistrate John Butcher on the firearms charge.

Circuit Judge Jake Fisher set Friday, April 25 for arraignment on the charge that they violated an injunction forbidding pickets to trespass on land of the Elk River Coal and Lumber Company.

The Widen mine, one of the largest non-union operations in the state, has been shutdown since April 1 because of picketing by the United Mine Workers.

OVER 2,000 A WEEK CHANGE TO NEW NASH!
"Our switch to the Nash '600' has been amply justified. Averaging 24 to 26 miles a gallon at speeds of 45 to 60, Nash is roomier and certainly more easy to handle!" —Fortland, Oregon
"Your new '600' tore them all from just about every angle. I average 150 miles a day at the wheel and four wheel coil springing makes a world of difference. I am getting over 25 miles to the gallon and saving on oil, tires and even license plates. This Nash air conditioning is great!" —E. M. J., Grand Rapids, Mich.

Is this the great gasoline discovery of our time?

FROM TEXAS CITY COMES NEWS THAT MAY REVOLUTIONIZE PRESENT THEORIES OF GASOLINE CHEMISTRY

American Oil Company pioneers entirely new way of making gasoline! World's first commercial Hydro-forming unit now in production! Flame Control tested with remarkable results.

The people of Texas City, Texas, are proud of the American Oil Company's great refinery there. It includes the two biggest refining units in the world. Seven hundred and forty acres of Wonderland! They point to it as one of the show places of the state.

But one day a new structure began to take shape. People wondered... what was this feverish activity... why these swarms of hulking trucks... why these hundreds of men working?

Here were these great modern refining units—yet they were adding more equipment! What was going on? Then the news came out... it was the revolutionary new Hydro-forming unit!

For months the petroleum industry buzzed with the news of the discovery of this entirely new way of making gasoline... a process that may revolutionize all previous theories of gasoline chemistry. Chemical engineers call it Hydro-forming... a method of building new and important qualities into gasoline... a way that was impossible before the American Oil Company pioneered this wonderful process.

What Does This Great Discovery Mean?

Burning gasoline is the source of engine power. Uncontrolled, combustion is violent, with a detonating, explosive shock that wastes energy. There was one best way to cut this shock down—by controlling the flame—and this has been the goal of chemists for decades!

Now—Flame Control—Combustion Control!

Now, in the revolutionary, new Hydro-formed American Gas, FLAME CONTROL has been accomplished! From this amazing refining process comes a new, super-volatile, highly aromatic gasoline that burns more rapidly. Yet shock is greatly reduced—combustion is controlled—and more usable power is at last attained.

Flame Control Means Cushioned Power!

As FLAME CONTROL cuts shock, CUSHIONED POWER comes into being—sustained, increasing, expanding pressure that drives the piston down, through its full course. Now we have new thrust—new power that gets more out of the potential energy of gasoline—that cushions it, harnesses it—put it to work! This is a new kind of power—a different kind of power.

Engines now turn in a soft gentle purr, when idling, or when running "all out." There is new smoothness, because violent explosive shock is greatly reduced. Bearings and moving parts receive less destructive pounding.

Revolutionizes Old Theories of Octane!

Because of the different way it is refined, Hydro-formed American Gas is more volatile than ever before—more aromatic—more easily vaporized. Its knock-arresting constituents do not remain in liquid state, as in the average conventional gas, but become vaporized—distributed to all cylinders more evenly and impartially. Thus in Hydro-formed American Gas, anti-knock is far more efficient.

Gains Octane on the Road!

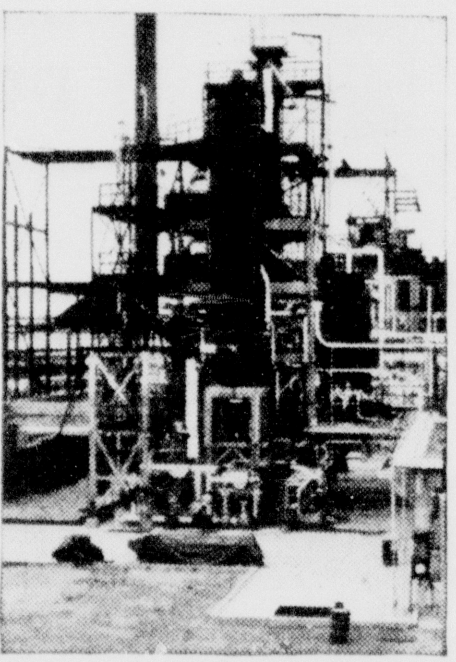

Official results of extensive road tests by Industry Committees show that conventional gasoline, on the average, loses octane numbers on the road. But from the super-volatility of Hydro-formed American Gas—from its greater aromaticity—from Flame Control and Cushioned Power—comes ROAD OCTANE that actually surpasses laboratory figures. And it's ROAD OCTANE that counts—not laboratory ratings!

Here, then, is the new Hydro-formed American Gas. Radically new from start to finish. Point for point the finest American Gas that ever left our refinery! Yet it still sells at regular gas price!

Famous AMOCO-GAS Now Hydro-formed, Too!

The new Hydro-forming process has also been applied to Amoco-Gas, the original special motor fuel, which likewise moves forward and upward to an all-time high in quality and efficiency.

Hydro-forming is the latest triumph of gasoline science—the newest demonstration of the enormous power that lies in gasoline—new, dramatic proof of how much work per drop it can perform!

Newsboy Turns The Tables

FLORENCE, S. C. — A persistent newsboy in Florence's downtown section was stumped by the business man who repeatedly warned him off with "I don't know how to read."

The boy thought it over each day, finally suggested: "Well, you can turn it upside down and laugh at it."

He gained a regular customer.

Crimes Inspired By Jealousy Are Based on Fear

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX, Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage — Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

The tragic thing about jealousy is that if you didn't create it, encourage it, feed it and sacrifice your heart to it, it would not exist. Also, your jealousy because you feel inferior.

The Papers have started us recently with a series of revolting crimes inspired by jealousy. The case, for instance, of those two titled Englishmen, members of the same regiment in India. The murdered man, "a belted Earl" and all that sort of thing, was a widower holding a title, one of the most honorable in Scotland.

At first glance, the murder had every appearance of suicide. The dead man was found with his service revolver beside him. By chance a second wound was discovered, impossible to have been self-inflicted. The Earl had been attentive to the older man's wife, a bride of a few months. In a jealous frenzy, the baronet flung aside loyalty to country, regiment and his superior officer. He made of his young wife, whether she was guilty or not guilty, a byword in British Army circles.

Has Jungle Flavor
In spite of the titles and position of all parties concerned, the affair had a raw jungle flavor which rocked England in spite of its almost nightly blitzkriegs.

Another murder, even more revolting, had to do with the jealous rage of a young man whose wife won a beauty contest. Having his wife acclaimed "the most beautiful brunette" enraged the husband, from whom she had been separated, pending a divorce.

JERSEY FOREST FIRE WIPES OUT CHICKEN FARM

Samuel Benson ruefully surveys some of the 4,000 casualties on his chicken farm near Lakewood, N. J., victims of the forest fire that raged through the Jersey resort area. Nearly 100 homes were destroyed and damage was estimated in the millions. The flames threatened to wipe out Lakewood itself before the fire split into two sections and passed around the community.

He came to their home, murdered not only her mother but his own infant son, a baby of two. He tried to complete the job by stabbing his wife; she survived, and it now looks as if she would make a complete recovery. Nothing gained for the double murder but the probability of the electric chair.

There was also the story of the wife, no longer young, who brutally destroyed with acid the face of a woman of whom she was jealous. But why continue the sorry tale? Tomorrow's papers may have an entirely new crop of jealousy-inspired crimes.

Fear Is Basis
Fear that comes from self-distrust is the basis of this jungle emotion. The cure, as psychiatrists have long pointed out, is to live down your inferiority complex. Think better of your own endowments. A life sentence or the electric chair is a heavy price to pay for running berserk.

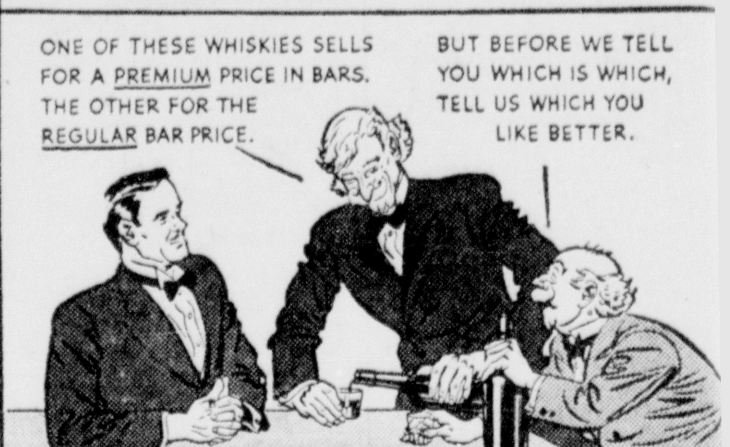

Granted the worst—that some vamp has cast her spell over an adored husband, or that some younger and better endowed man has turned a young wife's head—it's asking almost more than human nature is capable of to suggest that a man or a woman be calm under these circumstances. But a person can be safe even if he finds it hard to be always sane.

The law has its remedy for infidelity. Even the chains of incompatibility, mental cruelty and other sources of unhappiness in married life may be decently broken. It's the brooding day and night that causes men and women to commit these crimes, dwelling day and night on the thought that your love—the best you had to give—has been betrayed. Don't let yourself down—think well of yourself.

Honeymoon Gold

by PEGGY DERN

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE
THINGS WERE not going so well in the Gray Gull cottage. Mrs. Edmonds was by no stretch of the imagination given with housewife traits. To put it flatly, Mrs. Edmonds couldn't cook and she had no desire to learn.

In a filmy, trailing crepe and lace hostess gown, she made a pretty play of setting the table. Meanwhile the major struggled manfully with can-opener and canned food and eyed with hungry, disappointed eyes the luscious looking steak in the meat tray of the mechanical ice box.

"I'm really not hungry," practiced his wife as she arranged dainty lettuce leaves and dropped on them spoonfuls of diced canned fruit, then heaped over the whole a gob of mayonnaise. "There are some crackers—we'll toast them with cheese—and there's milk."

"But, honey-bunch, ANYBODY can broil a steak!" pleaded the major, recklessly.

She drew herself up, offended at his tone. He saw her lips quiver, and was certain that there was a tear forming in her eye. Although married less than a week, the major had learned his stern signals. "But, of course, we'll have the steak tomorrow. I didn't really want it tonight," he began hurriedly.

"Oh, yes, you do. And I'll cook it for you—if it kills me," she told him dramatically. "But I don't see why you married ME if it was a cook you wanted. I've TOLD you I can't cook. How would I ever learn, living in a hotel practically all my life?"

She was making a great to-do with the steak, shrinking daintily from the contact of the red, smooth meat, shuddering a little as her fingers were bloodied by it; shoving it under the flames in the oven with a little gesture of distaste.

"I don't see how anybody can possibly eat anything that looks so horrid when it's raw!" she protested almost tearfully.

But the major, hungrily eyeing the broiling meat, was for the first time in their brief married life, a little preoccupied in his attempts at peacemaking.

The Flamingo cottage had been assigned to June and Donald Heath. A place of delicate colors stolen from the plumage of the lovely roseate flamingo whose amazing grace so enchants the tropical visitor. June loved the mother-of-pearl gray, the faint, rosy pinks, the soft blues of the place. She went about stroking pillows, touching the silvery gray woodwork, while Donald watched her, an unhappy look in his lean, brown face.

"Almost time for you to begin getting ready for a concert, isn't it?" he said teasingly.

She turned to him swiftly, almost pleadingly.

"Darling—please don't remind me," she cried. "I never want to think of another concert, or even to see another violin as long as I live. I just want to be a human being, a wife—your wife, darling. And maybe, if God is very good to me, the mother of your children. Oh, please, dearest—please believe me."

Donald's arms closed about her and he rubbed his cheek against hers with a caressing gesture that seemed to melt the very heart in her breast. But his eyes were still troubled, uneasy.

"I want to believe that, angel," he told her after a moment. "But when I remember all that you've given up, just for a lug like me—"

She put a soft hand over his mouth and said with slightly unsteady gaiety, "Stop it! You can't talk like that about my favorite husband!"

His hand caught hers and he kissed each finger-tip separately. Then he spread her hand out across the palm of his and studied it very closely.

"Such a strong, fine hand," he said in an almost musing tone. "Ever since it was five years old, it's been trained to be the hand of a great concert violinist. When I think of your mother—"

"Let's not think of my mother—not just now," June said quietly. "Poor darling, she's terribly bitter. But she'll get over it."

"Will she? I wonder," said Donald. "And I don't know that I can blame her. After all, when you've sacrificed everything for 18 years to give someone a career, and then that someone refuses to take the career—"

"But I worked for two years. Don't make a lot of money—and I gave it all to her." June pointed out, her voice shaken so that he knew she, too, had been thinking the same thoughts he was expressing, and that she had worried about the same things that were bothering him. "She has enough to take care of her comfortably as long as she lives. She knows that you and I will not let her want for anything."

"She'd starve in the gutter before she'd accept a crust of bread from me, you know. She said so herself," Donald reminded her a trifle grimly.

"I know. But she was terribly upset, overwrought. She didn't mean it—" June's voice broke.

"I don't think you ought to kid yourself about that," Donald reminded her curtly. "Your mother is a very determined lady and she didn't strike me as at all likely to change her mind. Especially about me. She thinks I am a good-for-nothing so-and-so, who waited until she had you all groomed to make a killing as a concert star, and then walked in and swiped you for myself. And—she's right, of course."

June drew a long, hard breath and said quietly, "We have to have this out, Don, here and now. Because—if you are going to walk out on me, you'll have to do it before we go any further. I couldn't give you up—"

"That's the way I feel about it, darling. The only thing that tortures me is that some day you may be sorry—and then it'll be too late. Maybe if you give up your music, the career you slaved and sacrificed for—you may regret it—"

"I'll never regret it. I love you. All I shall ever want is to be your wife and have your love," said June.

"Bless you for that!" said Donald in a voice that was little more than a ghost of a sound, as his lips found hers.

Night settled down over the island. Night that was silent save for the pounding of the surf on the beach; the countless rustling of the small night creatures hidden in the jungle; and the soft murmur of muffled oars, as a long boat filled with dark shadows pulled into the mouth of the little creek that fed the march. There was the sound of voices, very low, very cautious; the moving of a dozen or more men settling themselves for silent waiting. And then—darkness again.

And far out on the ocean a long, rolling black film flattened the waves, as an "oil-slick"—marking the spot where an oil tanker had been scuttled, its hundreds of gallons of oil rushing to the surface, lying black and thick and gummy over the turquoise blue waters—started its long voyage south, leaving ugliness and grime, bits of wreckage that spoke with eloquent tongues of dark deeds done out there in that vast silence between sea and sky.

WIFE PRESERVERS

Cobwebs should be carefully removed from walls to prevent streaking. Fasten a soft cotton flannel bag or cloth over a broom, and lightly apply it to the wall, gently brushing up until webs adhere to the cloth.

An estimated 40,000 young men are being trained under the defense program of the United States Office of Education in co-operation with schools and colleges.

Synthetic Plastic Will Be Used for Filling Teeth

Hailed as Probable Sub- stitute for Gold Inlays and Metallic Fillings

By RENNIE TAYLOR
Associated Press Science Writer

SAN FRANCISCO, April 22.—Synthetic plastic fillings which match almost perfectly the natural appearance of the teeth were demonstrated before California dentists today and hailed as probable future substitutes for gold inlays and metallic fillings and bridgework.

These fillings were made of acrylic resin, a coal derivative much used in industry. At the outset the substance is clear, like glass, but it can be colored to any shade or hue.
When made somewhat translucent
it can take on the color of the tooth it fills.

Plastic More Serviceable
Enamel long has been used for inlays, and it matches the color of the tooth but its application is limited and it is not as serviceable as the plastic, the specialists reported.

For several years acrylic resins have been used to make dental plates but it has been employed as an inlay material for only about two years. Many dentists have used it but have been waiting to see how it stood up over long periods before talking about it.

The demonstration was given before the California Dental Association by Dr. Frank L. Hart, San Francisco specialist. He said he and other dentists had almost abandoned gold and other metals for filling cavities.

The synthetic product is better than gold when it comes to adhering to the tooth or cold and therefore expands or contracts but little,
Dr. Hart asserted.

Matches Teeth

It can be used also for making fixed bridges, the specialist reported.
In this hole it sometimes is reinforced internally with metal, but the outside appearance matches the teeth.

Acrylic resin for dental use costs about $1 and ounce, as against $35 for gold, and is no harder to handle, Dr. Hart reported.

He said it had shown no signs of deterioration thus far in teeth filled nearly two years ago. He advised dentists against removing efficient gold inlays or bridgework to replace them with the new material, asserting that would expose the defective teeth to added hazards.

Most of America's oilcloth, ninety-six million square yards are produced annually, is made on a cotton base, but a small amount is made on paper base, according to the Census bureau.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

REVERSE OF A REDOUBLE

PROPER use of a redouble over the opponents' informatory or takeout double is to show general high card strength and indicate to your partner the probability that your side may punish a bid by the other side. Misuse of it, to indicate a fine fit with your partner's suit and the likelihood of his being able to make his contract easily is seldom profitable. With such a holding, it is usually better to jump his bid, even to a level higher than he is likely to be able to play successfully, in order to erect a barrier against stronger opponents' bidding.

South in this case had a complete misunderstanding of the purpose of a redouble in such a situation. His using it enabled West to get into the bidding cheaply, with the result that the opponents reached their game.

contract in hearts. They made it easily, following a lead of the diamond A and a switch to clubs, the declarer losing only one trick in each of those suits, plus one in spades, a club being discarded on a spade.

South's correct action over
East's double was a bid of either 3-Diamonds or 4-Diamonds, the latter being what many experts would have used, to make sure they shut out the opposition. If that had been done, West would have found it very foolhardy to overcall and should have doubled.
The contract could have been set a couple of tricks, with the defenders taking two in hearts, two in spades and one in clubs. That would have given East and West a score of only 300 points, instead of a game worth 620 if we rate a vulnerable game as worth 500, as in duplicate.

Japan Enters The 'Sufu' Age

TOKYO, (AP)—Planned economy has created a new word for the Japanese — sufu. They use it for anything they don't like.

Originally it was applied to the staple fiber mixed with cotton, wool, or silk in order to conserve supplies of these goods.

But now they speak of sufu rice or a sufu mattress, or sufu sake
the native rice wine.

Sufu sake is double sufu to any good Japanese but sake brewers are experimenting nevertheless with potatoes, berries and other plants.

This brings an almost universal shout of "Inchiki!" Or in American slang: "We wuz robbed!"

Orange Men Argue Question of Squeeze

ORANGE, Calif. (AP)—Just one-eighth of an inch is causing a controversy about the packing of oranges.

If the lid of an orange crate were that much shorter it would have to be nailed down flat and would eliminate the so-called "crown pack" which now permits crowding more fruit into a crate.

Buyers, backed by farm bureaus in the citrus belt, contend the crowded pack damages some of the oranges.

Today's GARDEN-GRAPH

By DEAN HALLIDAY
(Distributed by Central Press Association)

SELECTING ASPARAGUS PLANTS

After asparagus seed has sprouted, cultivating should start early to keep down the weeds from the very beginning. Frequently a few radish seeds are mixed with the asparagus seed before sowing. The radish seeds sprout early and mark the row plainly, thus cultivation can begin at an even earlier date.

As illustrated in the Garden-Graph, only the strong roots should be selected for planting out in trenches. The best type of root has a number of large buds rather loosely distributed over the crown.
Crowns having long, spindling roots or a large number of small, pointed buds should be discarded as they usually produce small spears.

Temperature Is Forty Degrees In Grantsville

Residents Who Have Been Planting Gardens Decide To Wait

GRANTSVILLE, April 22 — A decided halt was noted in the "signs of spring" activities yesterday when the mercury dropped back to the forty mark after hovering around eighty for the past two weeks. With the ideal summer weather which has prevailed in this section, somewhat unusual at this season of the year, some of the more optimistic residents began cleaning up their lawns and even planted a little "early" garden, and a few flowers and bulbs. They went about this business with apparent assurance that spring had definitely arrived and that the usual late snows would not be forthcoming this year. Sunday the temperature reached eighty-five, as warm as many mid-summer days last year. Yesterday and today however, the mercury dropped to forty and stayed there and people decided to postpone the garden making for the present, but their overcoats back on and rekindled their furnace fires.

To Attend Convention

Four Grantsville members of the Woodmen of the World will leave Friday morning for Washington, D. C. to attend the biennial Head Camp convention of the society. Elected by their respective camp to represent Grantsville Camp No. 41 at this meeting the local delegates will meet with other Woodmen from all over the jurisdiction which includes the states of West Virginia, Delaware, Maryland and District of Columbia.

Representing the local membership are Lawrence G. Bittinger, J. Clarence Miller, Ralph J. Glatfelter and Dr. T. O. Broadwater. Oliver C. Buckel will also accompany the group as a representative of the Bittinger camp.

The Head Camp convention is one of twenty-five such meetings being held all over the nation. Reports on the progress of the Woodmen of the World, addresses by national officers, a mass initiation of

Regional Meeting Of Parents and Teachers Is Held

Eastern Panhandle Group Meets in Paw Paw for All-day Conference

PAW PAW, W. Va., April 22 — Tuesday, April 22, Berkeley Springs was host for the first time to the regional conference of Parents and Teachers who convened for an all-day program and study of problems relating to parent and teachers work.

Max Wilburn, assistant superintendent of Berkeley County schools, was general chairman of the program, and has invited delegates from the seven counties of the Eastern Panhandle that make up region one of the state organization.

The meeting was held in the Berkeley Springs United Brethren church, where a noonday luncheon was served to all delegates. Mrs. H. S. Klein, Huntington, state president, Mrs. O. S. Russell, Mill Creek, vice president, and Mrs. W. W. Bremer, Omar, were the state officials who attended.

The principal address was delivered at 11 a. m., in the church auditorium by Mrs. Walter H. Bullock, field secretary of the National Congress. Mrs. Bullock chose as her subject, "The Parent Teachers' Association in the Present World Situation."

C. M. Lucas, Cumberland, sang appropriate selections at the high school program, where a tree was planted and dedicated to outstanding citizens.

Joint Meeting Held

The Paw Paw Woman's club was host to the Berkeley Springs Woman's club Tuesday evening.

The Berkeley Springs club had arranged a program that was most entertaining and also of considerable educational value. Mrs. H. C. C. Wiley was in charge and opened the meeting by presenting Mrs. Arthur Swisher who sang "The Wind" by Charles G. Spross and Spring's "A Lovely Lady" by W. Keith Elliott. Mrs. Swisher was accompanied at the piano by Miss Ethel Somers.

Dr. Lilly Belle Dietrich delivered an address on "Gardens and Gardening." The speaker punctuated her very instructive address from time to time with bits of original humor, which was heartily enjoyed by all. Dr. Dietrich closed her address by offering to answer questions on gardening. A very interesting discussion followed.

Refreshments were served by the Paw Paw club.

Persons Should Not Fuss with Back of the Neck Infections, Doctor Says

By LOGAN CLENDENNING, M.D.
I am asked by one of my readers to advise the treatment of a small pimple on the back of the neck. She has been told that it is dangerous and wants to know whether that is true or not.

It is potentially dangerous and should be treated with a great deal of respect. The back of the neck is particularly liable to pus infections. These come from the rubbing of collar bands at the hair line. The infection usually starts in a hair follicle and may be of little consequence at first. The skin and tissues in this region seem to be particularly adapted to the production of quite serious infections.

The tissues are brawny and lymphatic drainage is peculiar. Little infections in this region may go on to something more serious whereas in another place in the body they would not amount to anything. They may go on to large boils (furuncles) or, what is far more serious, a carbuncle. A carbuncle is a pus infection which burrows in channels along the skin and does not gather or point out in one place as a boil or furuncle does. It is, therefore, very much more difficult to drain it. A carbuncle also produces considerably more toxemia than a furuncle and has a tendency to spread and to invade the blood. It is one of the most serious of diseases which appears to be of a minor character in the beginning.

Furuncle and Carbuncle
Both a furuncle and a carbuncle are later stages of the simple pimple. The pimple may progress into either of them.

The most important thing to remember about a pimple on the back of the neck is not to rub it. This must be guarded very carefully because the collar naturally rubs it and people have a perverse tendency to put their fingers on a place like that and think they can make it go away by gentle massage. As a matter of fact, this does nothing but spread it. Then every movement in getting in and out of clothes pulls at this part of the body which seems to be a sort of fulcrum for the rest of the muscles.

Treatment should, therefore, be to apply an impetigo salve, which may be carbolic vaseline or ammoniated mercury ointment, to the pimple itself, not rubbing, but simply applying the salve lightly. Then cover with a piece of sterile gauze and put adhesive plaster along so that the collar will not rub the infected area. It may be necessary to shave some hair but this might as well be done at this time as later.

If the condition shows any tendency to get worse, a doctor should be called immediately.

When the skin is sensitive to soap, is there any way to clean it thoroughly that will not aggravate the eruption or dryness?

Soap, when it irritates the skin, usually does so because of the free alkali present in the soap, or the types of fatty acid in the soap, or both. In soaps with a good deal of fatty acid, the acidity of the lather may be 10 against the normal range of the skin's 4 to 7 points.

The problem can be overcome by using preparations with a base of certain vegetable oils with fatty acids, with a reaction approaching that of normal skin. Several of these are on the market. Your druggist will know of them.

Questions and Answers

Reader:—"I have yellowish spots under my eyes and around my mouth. Please tell me if it is caused by poor circulation. Do you think it is?"

Answer:—No. They are probably little fat deposits, which are very common and do no harm.

Name wanted for Blondie's Baby

$100 is waiting for you if your suggestion for a name is accepted by the judges for Blondie's new baby daughter.

What is the name you think it should be,
and why do you think it's suitable?

That's all. If Chic Young, Beatrice Fairfax, Inez Robb and Dr. A. R. Dafoe, the four judges, select your entry—you'll have the proud satisfaction of naming the baby and winning $100.

HERE ARE THE SIMPLE RULES. READ THEM CAREFULLY, PLEASE

- (1)—Print or write plainly on a piece of paper your choice of a name for Blondie's baby daughter and complete this sentence, "I think this name is suitable for the baby because . . ." The sentence should contain not more than 25 words.
- (2)—Do not enter more than one name and one sentence in this contest.
- (3)—To be eligible entries must be mailed before midnight, Wednesday, April 30, 1941, to P. O. Box 6, Grand Central Annex, New York City.
- (4)—Neatness, suitability and originality of thought and expression, as well as the name, will be the determining factors in awarding the prize of $100.
- (5)—Any resident of the United States or Canada may compete, with the exception of employees of this paper or members of their families.
- (6)—The prize will be awarded as soon after April 30th as the judging has been finished. Duplicate prizes will be awarded in case of ties. The decision of the judges is final. The judges are Chic Young, Beatrice Fairfax, Inez Robb and Dr. A. R. Dafoe.

"Ziegfeld Girl" Hailed As Mighty Musical

Revealing the Golden Age of musicals, "Ziegfeld Girl" is hailed as the most important of productions scheduled for 1941. Also as being Hollywood's most elaborate spectacle since "The Great Ziegfeld."

Opening at the Maryland theater tomorrow for a seven day engagement, the picture combines an all-star cast, spectacular production numbers and magnificent sets, and brings together a galaxy of the most beautiful girls in America.

James Stewart plays Gilbert Young, her truck-driver sweetheart who loves Sheila to the hilt of the song and fascination of wealthy Geoffrey Collis, played by Ian Hunter. Tony Martin, as the singing star of the Follies, becomes infatuated with Sandra who remains loyal to her husband, Franz (Philip Dorn), and who gives up her career as a Follies beauty for his love.

Jackie Cooper, as Sheila's young brother, Edward Everett Horton, as Noble Sage, Ziegfeld's press agent, Charles Winninger, old-time vaudeville who astounds the know-it-all by parading Broadway together with his partner, Al Shean, in their "Gallagher and Shean" number; Paul Kelly, Eve Arden, Dan Dailey, Jr., Fay Holden, Fritz Brangas and Rose Hobart all appear in the star-studded cast.

Kay Francis Reveals Soul of "Play Girl"

"Play Girl," starring Kay Francis in the title role, lays bare the soul of a woman of the world and reveals her inherent goodness and sentimentality.

Comedy blends with strong human drama in this chronicle of the career of a fortune hunter who tries to make out of her own life.

STARRING IN "ZIEGFELD GIRL"

A singing star and his love! Tony Martin's infatuation for Hedy Lamarr in "Ziegfeld Girl," which opens tomorrow on the Maryland screen, proves one of the most interesting threads of the story which traces the lives of Miss Lamarr, Judy Garland and Lana Turner in their sudden rise from obscurity to fame. James Stewart joins the trio of beauties in the spectacular new musical.

of beach of promise suits and other unpropitious devices.

With her youth gradually slipping away, the adventures takes under her wing a beautiful young girl, trains her to follow in her footsteps, and forms a unique partnership which proves highly lucrative. But a crisis arises when the girl falls in love with an intended victim who wants to marry her. She runs away, leaving the young man to his fate at the hands of the artful fortune hunter.

Now the latter's inherent sentimentality, which she always has strived to control, suddenly floods her soul and accuses her to the most noble act of her tarnished life, provides a heart-stirring climax.

James Ellison, in the romantic lead, and Mildred Coles, as the devastating dancer, head the featured supporting cast in "Play Girl," which Frank Woodruff directed from the story by Jerry Cady and Cliff Reid produced for RKO Radio. Other principal roles are played by Nigel Bruce, Margaret Hamilton, Katharine Alexander, George P. Huntley and Selmer Jackson.

"Road to Zanzibar" Loaded with Gags

Loaded with swift-paced gags and several brand new hit tunes, Paramount's new comedy with music, "Road to Zanzibar," now showing at the Strand thru Friday, Starring Bob Crosby, Bob Hope and Dorothy Lamour, the film is easily one of the funniest that has come along this season.

Crosby and Hope have a knack for delivering a gag line that is just perfection, and Dorothy Lamour is still one of our favorite eye-fills with an extremely pleasant voice and beguiling manner. She doesn't wear a sarong in this film, but never fear, for she does wear something even more exciting—a dress made of fern leaves.

Victor Schertzinger, who directed "Road to Singapore," also directed "Road to Zanzibar." Incidentally, both pictures are the products of the same brilliant writers, Frank Butler and Don Hartman.

Comic Turns to Screen Villainy

Hollywood has its own ideas about the kind of roles an actor should play!

Robert O. Davis, a character actor whose face is known to screen fans all over the world, made that discovery shortly after his arrival in the screen colony. Although he had a fine record as a comedian in Max Reinhardt productions in Europe, film directors promptly cast him as a villain in such strong dramas as "Nazi Spy" and the more recent "Mortal Storm."

Continuing his new found career, Davis again plays a menace in Universal's action drama, "Meet the Wildcat," now at the Garden theater. The story features Ralph Bellamy, Margaret Lindsay, Joseph Schildkraut and Allen Jenkins and deals with the activities of a gang of art thieves who prey upon museums in Mexico City. But relaxation from his screen villainy, Davis spends his spare-time coaching young players in the performance of musical and comedy roles.

Also on the Garden program is "The Howards of Virginia," starring Cary Grant and Martha Scott.

Sunday School Group To Meet In Frostburg

Plans Are Also Made for Association Meeting Here June 5 and 6

The Advisory Board of the Western District Sunday School Association will meet at the Mt. Zion Welsh Baptist church in Frostburg, Md. 19.

The date was chosen at the joint executive meeting of the Western Maryland Baptist Sunday School Association and the Western Maryland Baptist Association, Monday evening at the First Baptist church in Frostburg.

Plans were also completed for the association meeting to be held June 5 and 6 in the First Baptist church, Cumberland. Cleveland H. Taylor, moderator, will call the meeting to order June 5 and the guest speaker will be Dr. J. E. Dillard, Nashville, Tenn., director of promotion of the Southern Baptist Convention. Reports of the Brotherhood and Sunday School training school will also be made.

The Rev. M. Randolph Keefe, vice-moderator, will be in charge of the morning session June 6, when addresses will be made by Dr. Joseph T. Watts, general secretary of the Maryland Baptist Association; Dr. George W. Sadler, secretary to Africa, Europe and the Near East and a former missionary to Africa.

At the afternoon session Taylor will again be in charge and the guest speakers will be the Rev. C. B. Jones of the First English Baptist church, Frostburg; Mrs. W. P. Copeland, of Cumberland, who will talk on the work of the young people and Dr. Watts.

The election and installation of officers at the evening session will be in charge of the Rev. W. D. Reese, of Mt. Zion Welsh Memorial church, Frostburg. Dr. Sadler will give an address and the session will close with an address by Dr. Dillard.

The following from Cumberland attended the Monday meeting: The Rev. M. Randolph Keefe, Jr., the Rev. Edgar S. Price, Cleveland H. Taylor, E. A. Sullivan, Melvin Grindie, Keith Ryan, Matthew Robb, W. P. Copeland and Mrs. J. K. Trenton.

THREE PERSONS ARE INJURED IN MINOR ACCIDENTS HERE

Three persons, one a child, were treated yesterday at Allegheny hospital for injuries suffered in accidents.

Miss Mary C. Wolfe, 721 Shriver avenue, severed two arteries near her right thumb yesterday afternoon while working with glassware at McCrory's five and ten cents store, Baltimore street, where she is employed. Eight sutures were used to close the wound.

Joseph Skelley, four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Skelley, 506 Pine avenue, suffered a lacerated right wrist yesterday morning when he fell on a piece of broken glass while playing in a vacant lot near his home.

H. W. Allender, 49, of Springfield, W. Va., a B. & O. employee, suffered a left foot injury Monday night when he fell from a railroad motor car. He was treated yesterday morning at the hospital.

All three were discharged after receiving treatment.

Cumberland Youth Wins Mock Trial at Duke University

The annual medico-legal mock trial at the Duke University Law School, Durham, N. C., was won by a Cumberland team, Francis Elwood Barkman, of 413 Pulaski street, who is a third-year law student.

He was also president of the "Duke Lineback" which the popular name for law students who live in log cabins in the heart of Duke forest.

Barkman is the author of a note entitled "Perversions of Statutes Permitting Fundamental Corporate Changes" which was published in the winter issue of the Duke Bar Association Journal.

tator's funds in Cumberland banks, then returned to Keyser and transported the will, along with other of the deceased's effects, to the Lonaconing home of Dean. Here, according to the petitioners, the 1924 will was read again in the presence of Taylor McLaughlin.

On the stand, Taylor McLaughlin testified that Dean said he would deposit it for safe-keeping in the safe of a Lonaconing store.

The will then vanished for all practical purposes in directing distribution of the estate, according to the plaintiffs.

The plaintiffs declare that Dean and Hartley sought and obtained from Benson McLaughlin's only immediate survivor, his sister, Mrs. Phoebe Magill, of Brunswick, a survivor of her right to administration of the estate. Mrs. Magill was not present when the 1924 will was allegedly found and read.

Subsequently, Taylor McLaughlin said, he was contacted by Dean and Hartley and informed of their appointment by the orphans court as administrators of the estate.

Named Co-Administrator

The pair told him at this time, McLaughlin said, that "of course, our administration will end if a will turns up."

Not satisfied with the proceedings, McLaughlin said he went to the orphans court, related the circumstances of the will-reading on the day of the funeral and was appointed co-administrator with Dean and Hartley.

Contradicting the claims of Taylor McLaughlin and his brothers and sisters, Dean and Hartley asserted they had neither found nor read a will dated January, 1924.

The only will they found, they declared, was one dated in 1913 but revoked as of January 13, 1924.

It was this will, they said, that was read to the relatives on the day of the funeral.

Different Document

Taylor McLaughlin insisted, however, that the revoked will does not resemble, even in appearance, that which he saw discovered among his uncle's effects. He added that his uncle told him a week before his death that he had made provision for him and other nieces and nephews in a will which would be found in his room.

The co-administrator went on to say that the will he heard read on the day of the funeral, after making certain specific bequests left the residue of the estate to William McLaughlin, the deceased's brother. Since William McLaughlin is also dead, his share would go to his sons and daughters.

William A. Gunter and J. Philip Roman, attorneys, represent the petitioners, and Hocke P. Whitworth Sr. is counsel for the administrators.

Robert A. Haines Is Found Guilty On Two Charges

Accused of Drunken and Reckless Driving; Files Notice of an Appeal

Robert A. Haines, of RFD 3, Potomac Park, was fined $105 and costs yesterday in trial magistrate court on charges of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor or drug and reckless driving.

His attorney, William L. Wilson, Jr., filed notice of an appeal to circuit court.

Haines was arrested the morning of April 13 on North Mechanic street after his car "hooked" the bumper of a machine parked near the Maryland theater. Taken to headquarters he was placed in an upstairs cell, but later had to be transferred to a sound-proof cell in the basement.

Police said Haines attacked officer C. C. Roby and tore the officer's shirt while he was being transferred. A brief scuffle which ensued ended with Haines being taken to Allegheny hospital where twenty-four sutures were used to close scalp wounds suffered in the fracas, they said.

Officer J. E. Sherry and B. F. Hotchkiss made the arrest.

Another driver, Richard Atkinson, of Bowman's Addition, paid fines and costs totaling $38.25 after he pleaded guilty to reckless driving, failing to stop after an accident and driving without an operator's license.

Atkinson was apprehended early yesterday morning after the car he was driving struck a parked machine on Baltimore street and failed to stop. Lieut. James E. Van and Officer James E. Davis preferred the charges.

Receiver Asked

asks Setting Aside of Sale

But unless the alleged sale is set aside, the bill asserts, the Eisenbergs will be deprived of the means of securing payment of their accounts and the defendants will be able, "by sharp practice," to have evaded the enforcement of the judgments of the court.

Accordingly, the petition asks:

1. That the distraint sale to Mrs. Peskin be declared null and void and set aside.

2. That Mr. and Mrs. Peskin be required to show cause why the sale should not be set aside.

3. That a receiver be appointed to take charge of the books, paper, records, accounts, goods and effects of the Peskin firm, collect debts due and preserve and dispose of the assets under the direction of the court.

4. That Mr. and Mrs. Peskin be restrained from selling or disposing of or retaining from the receiver any goods and effects which passed to Mrs. Peskin by reason of the sale, collecting any debts due, contracting any debts or intermeddling in any other manner with the assets.

5. That the affairs of Peskin be handled under the direction of the court and his effects applied to the payment of his debts and liabilities.

Acting on this petition, Judge Sloan ordered that the Peskins show cause why a receiver should not be appointed; that the Peskins and Lazarus show cause why the distraint sale should not be set aside; and that the Peskins show cause why an injunction should not be issued to prevent them from disposing of any of the stock, fixtures, assets and records.

In addition, the jurist also issued a temporary injunction, pending a hearing, forbidding the defendants from selling, transferring or otherwise disposing of the assets, stocks, fixtures, equipment or accounts allegedly sold to Mrs. Peskin.

Police seek SEVEN ESCAPED CONVICTS WHO MAY BE HEADED HERE

Seven escaped convicts from the Huttonsville, W. Va., state penal farm may be headed in this direction according to a warning received last night by the LaVale barracks of the state police.

The convicts were all long-termers with the average sentence they were serving being ten years.

The following men are among the escapees: Thornton Hollin, Parkersburg, W. Va., serving ten years for breaking and entering; Roy Burchard, and Affie Burchard, both of Parkersburg, W. Va., ten year terms for breaking and entering.

Robert Weese, Petersburg, W. Va., ten years for forgery; Granville Burrows, Hoesat, W. Va., two to ten years for forgery; Bobby Mike, Richmond W. Va., one to ten years for grand larceny; William Watson, Parkersburg, W. Va., ten years for breaking and entering.

The ten men filed the penal farm on Monday, April 21. Two men who escaped the prison farm at Keyser, W. Va., on Saturday, April 12 are also being sought by city and state police.

Steel-Worker Awarded $790 Damages by Jury For Assault Injuries

A circuit court jury yesterday awarded damages of $790 to a Cresapton steel-worker for injuries suffered when he was allegedly assaulted by another Cresapton man and his wife.

Mr. and Mrs. James A. Gardner lost the suit to Melvin H. Coleman by default when they failed to appear to contest it. The jury was impeded to assess the amount of damages.

According to the uncontradicted testimony of the plaintiff, he was assaulted at Cresapton Firemen's hall several weeks ago by Mr. and Mrs. Gardner after an argument. Coleman claimed he suffered a fractured skull, fractured facial bones, treatment in the hospital for a week and confinement to his home for another week.

Coleman was represented by Clarence Shutter, attorney.

Rand's Prepare For Opening Day

Advertising Manager Says New Store May Open This Week-end

Rand's Cut Rate Sell Service Store, located at the corner of Baltimore and North Centre streets, will be open for business this week-end if merchandise is received in time, Hyland Gelsky, of Pittsburgh, advertising manager, announced yesterday.

Gelsky is a brother of "Buck" Gelsky, one-time professional basketball star of the Pittsburgh Coffee Club, former president of the National Professional Basketball League and ex-president and owner of the Pittsburgh Pirates professional basketball team. He captained the Coffee Club in the days when the Keyser (W. Va.) Collegians met the Pittsburgh team annually.

A good portion of the merchandise has arrived here for the new store and is being placed by an experienced crew of men and women from Pittsburgh. Local persons seeking employment are being interviewed daily. Approximately twelve will be employed.

Russell Rodenbaugh, of Pittsburgh, manager of the store, announced that Melvin Sturtz, formerly with Holtzman's drug store, has been employed as patent medicines clerk.

Four expert cosmeticians of Pittsburgh, namely, Bernadette Hayden, Geraldine Schwab, Betty Cole and Elizabeth Obsust, will be here for the opening to give advice on the purchase of cosmetics and nationally known toiletries.

Dr. Art Roberts, formerly in charge of the firm's Morgantown, W. Va., store, is here assisting in making arrangements for the local opening.

The color scheme of the interior is gray with blue trimmings and fluorescent lighting adds to the attractiveness of the store. Neon signs will grace the entrance.

A full line of hospital supplies, patents, toiletries, household sundries, luggage and electrical and outdoor needs will be carried.

Non-Members Invited To Accompany Camera Club on Outing

The Cumberland Miniature Camera Club yesterday issued an invitation to any interested non-member owning a camera to accompany the club delegation on its photographic sight seeing tour to Washington, D. C., Sunday, April 27.

Robert Slemmer, secretary, said that approximately thirty members of the club already have signified their intention of making the trip and added that there will be accommodations for at least thirty more in the private coach.

Those interested are requested to make reservations at Harvey's Jewelry store, Baltimore street.

A trip to Arlington, Va., is included as the Virginia city offers wonderful picture possibilities.

The sightseers will leave here at 7 a. m., and will return the same evening at 9 o'clock by B. & O. railroad.

Carloadings Show 3,161 Increase

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad handled 46,189 cars of freight during the week ended April 19. Of this total 29,480 cars were loaded on line and 16,709 cars were received from connections. This was an increase of 3,161 cars handled over the same week of last year when the total was 3,023 cars handled consisting of 28,096 loaded on line and 14,932 received from connections.

During the previous week, (the week ended April 12) the total was 44,773, including 28,061 cars loaded on line and 16,912 received from connections. For the corresponding week in the year 1930, the total was 66,216, made up of 44,101 cars loaded on line and 22,115 received from connections.

Fall Victim Returns Home from Hospital

Eisenbergs Lose Insurance Suit

Owners of Widman Store Building Must Help Pay Costs of Front

The Eisenberg estate yesterday was ordered to pay to Saul Widman, proprietor of Widman's store at 137 Baltimore street, the full amount of insurance received for damage to the store front in the big fire of January, 1940.

A circuit court jury returned a $495 verdict in favor of Widman and against Carrie Eisenberg, Lorraine Eisenberg and Harold Eisenberg, trustees of the estate of the late Samuel Eisenberg, owners of the building Widman occupies.

According to the testimony, Widman entered into an agreement with the Eisenbergs providing that any money the Eisenbergs might save in the repairs of the building by virtue of the installation of a new store front by Widman would be allowed Widman on the cost of the front.

The amount of insurance received by the Eisenbergs for damage to the store front totaled $495, but the Eisenbergs asserted they had spent $223 for installation of a new beam supporting the second story and refused to pay Widman more than $272.

The jury ruled, however, that installation of the beam had nothing to do with the new front and brought in a verdict for the plaintiff for the full amount.

Widman was represented by Frederick A. Puderbaugh and Benny P. Epstein attorneys, while the defendants were represented by Edward J. Ryan and Charles Z. Hestek attorneys.

Clean Up and Beautify Property, Citizens Urged In Chamber Broadcast

Cumberland citizens were urged last night to clean up and beautify their property in the weekly broadcast of the chamber of commerce over Station WTBO.

The speaker was John Mordock, who pleaded that every resident do his part "to aid the efforts of nature and help Cumberland create an impression of orderliness, neatness and wholesome hospitality—an atmosphere which will inspire respect and a desire to participate in the good things we have to offer."

"Your individual participation in Cumberland can help make it a city of which you can feel proud," he said, "and which will attract the attention of travelers to the facilities and conveniences which Cumberland has to offer."

Veteran Pirate Relief Pitcher Sold to Dodgers

PITTSBURGH, April 22. (AP)—Mace Brown, veteran relief pitcher, has been sold to the Brooklyn Dodgers in a straight cash deal, the Pittsburgh Pirate management announced here today.

The sales tax on the Pirate ace was not revealed.

The deal was consummated in a three-way long distance telephone call among Larry MacPhail, general manager of the Dodgers, William E. Benninger, president of the Pirates, and Frankie Frisch, Pirate manager who is in St. Louis with his team. Brown was expected to join the Dodgers immediately.

Brown who will be 31 next month was in his seventh year with the Pirates. His all-time major league record since he joined the club in 1935 from Kansas City of the American Association shows fifty-five wins and forty-five losses. His best year was 1938 when he won fifteen and lost nine, mostly in relief roles.

Maj. Griffith Sees Club Owners Fil College Athletes As Defense 'Stars' No-Trade Ruling Leering at Them

Western Conference Commissioner Points to Record of 1917-18

CHICAGO, April 22. (AP)—Maj. John L. Griffith, commissioner of athletics for the Western Conference, predicted today that college athletes will play a major role in the nation's defense mobilization program—a role which will compare favorably with the distinguished record made by college athletes who saw service in 1917-18.

Pointing out that while only estimates can now be made of the number of college athletes who will be called because of the automatic deferment until the end of the school year accorded all students by the selective service act, Maj. Griffith said:

"College coaches in all sections already have reported considerable numbers of volunteers in all branches of service from their present squads, and even greater numbers from among recently graduated athletes."

Coach Won Decoration

Many present-day college coaches were among the college men of 1917, whose service records were outstanding, Maj. Griffith said.

Among Big Ten football coaches there is Bernie Bierman of Minnesota, with the marine corps during the last war, and Earl Martineau, Michigan's backfield coach, who was decorated for conspicuous service with the marines.

"The response of college men and college athletes in particular to the call to arms in 1917 was exceptional," Maj. Griffith said. "A survey of war records at four Big Ten Universities bears that out. It is estimated that almost 50 percent of all varsity lettermen from those four schools saw war service. In all, from the four campuses there were 854 athletes and 1

Vander Meer Blanks Cubs 1-0 on Four Hits

Cincinnati Hurler Shows Best Form Since 1938 Season

Reds' Ace Fans Dozen-- Lee Pitches Good Ball in Initial Start

CHICAGO, April 22 (AP)—Johnny Vander Meer of Cincinnati, showing his best form since his dazzling no-hit triumph of 1938, struck out 12 Chicago Cubs today and yielded only four hits to blank them, 1 to 0.

The fireball southpaw muddled through the first four innings, leaving eight runners stranded. During this time, he yielded all four hits, walked three and tossed a wild pitch.

But thereafter he was invincible. A Ladies' day crowd of 14,174 watched him retire the Cubs in order. His strikeouts included four of the last five men to face him.

Big Bill Lee, making his first start after signing his contract only 11 days ago, was the victim of the Reds. Lee allowed only five hits and virtually opened the sixth with a fly to center. Linus Fry beat out a scratch hit to short. Lee uncorked two successive wild pitches, advancing Fry to third.

Ival Goodman sent Fry home with a single to center. Lee retired the next 10 men to face him, but the Cubs, meanwhile, were helpless against Vander Meer. The boxscore:

District Sandlot Baseball Picture Practically the Same as Last Year

Bi-State, Pen-Mar and Tri-County Leagues Expected To Operate

According to all indications, the district sandlot baseball picture for 1941 will be practically the same as a year ago when three leagues operated.

The Bi-State League has reorganized but with four clubs, two less than last season. The Pen-Mar League will probably go with eight teams, the same number as in 1940, while the Tri-County League, still in the process of reorganization, will in all likelihood consist of a half-dozen outfits.

The Bi-State race is scheduled to get under way on Sunday, May 4, with Keyser playing at Froburg and the Cumberland Colts meeting Westvaco at Memorial Park, Westport. All are holdover clubs.

Midland and Hyndman were included in last year's setup but failed to retain franchises.

Eight teams have posted all or part of forfeit fees in the Pen-Mar League and the only stumbling block may be Eckhart, which may withdraw due to lack of support. Expected to send representatives:

to next Sunday afternoon's session at Eckhart are Eckhart, Mt. Savage, Wellersburg, Centerville, the Cumberland Merchants, Celanese Local 1874, Hyndman and Bard. Lonaconing, which sent spokesmen to several previous meetings, has given up any idea of a berth.

The Tri-County League has held one meeting this spring, with two clubs having representatives in attendance. The Cumberland Old Germans and Green Spring are ready to go and it is hoped by loop officials that at least four more teams will be represented at a meeting expected to be called next week.

"Bucky" Walbert Boxing Teacher At Fort Meade

FORT GEORGE G. MEADE, Md., April 22 (AP)—Charles "Bucky" Walbert, light heavy-weight boxer from Company G, has been appointed as a boxing instructor of the 115th Infantry Regiment by Col. D. John Markay, commanding officer.

Walbert will give instructions twice a week at physical training periods.

to next Sunday afternoon's session at Eckhart are Eckhart, Mt. Savage, Wellersburg, Centerville, the Cumberland Merchants, Celanese Local 1874, Hyndman and Bard. Lonaconing, which sent spokesmen to several previous meetings, has given up any idea of a berth.

GAMES SCHEDULED TODAY

NEW YORK, April 22 (AP)—Probable pitchers in the major leagues tomorrow (won-lost records in parentheses):

National League
New York at Boston—Lohman (0-1) or Bowman (1-0) vs. R. Erickson (0-2).

Philadelphia at Brooklyn—Podgajny (0-0) vs. Wyatt (1-1).
Pittsburgh at St. Louis—Butcher (1-0) vs. Nahem (0-0) or McGee (0-0).

American League
Boston at New York—Wagner vs. Gomez (1-0).
Washington at Philadelphia—Chase (1-0) vs. Knott (0-1).
St. Louis at Cleveland—Kennedy (0-1) vs. Feller (1-1).
Chicago at Detroit—Hallett (0-0) vs. Newhouse (0-0).

Honored Tarheel
NEWARK — George Starnweiss, Newark second-sacker, is the only North Carolina athlete to ever captain the Tarheels in two sports. A star quarterback in his college days, Starnweiss led the football and baseball teams his senior year.

Indians Sell Zuber

CLEVELAND, April 22 (AP)—The Cleveland Indians today sold Bill Zuber, pitcher, to the Washington Senators in a straight cash deal. Zuber, twenty-seven, a resident of Homestead, Iowa, pitched only twenty-four innings with the Tribe last year, winning one game and losing one. He is a right hander.

Big Fish Entry

MIAMI — A 647-pound Mako shark, claimed as a world record for women anglers, was entered in the Metropolitan Miami fish tournament. Mrs. Emory Ford, of Detroit, caught the game fish on a 39-thread line after a battle of 1 hour 43 minutes.

Change Positions

DETROIT—Three members of the infield of Newark's 1937 International League champions are now first basemen in the major leagues. McQuinn is with the St. Louis Browns; Ace Gordon, the second sacker, now captains at first for the Yankees; and Babe Dalgren, who played third for the Bears, is the Bee's first-base guard.

County Republicans Get Busy with Organization To Help Elect Stewart

Initial Steps Are Taken for Campaign Activities with G.O.P. Committees in Congressional District

Citizens Protest Erection of Sign on Thomas Street

A group of Republicans from various sections of Allegany county held an informal meeting last night in the law building on South Liberty street and took steps toward the organization of a Stewart-for-Congress Committee.

The purpose of the organization is to work with the Republican State Central Committee of Allegany county and the like committees of Garrett, Washington, Frederick and Montgomery counties toward the election of A. Charles Stewart, of Frostburg, as United States representative at the special election to be held May 27 in the district to fill the vacancy caused by the recent death of Representative William D. Byrd, of Williamsport.

Roman Is Chairman
J. Philip Roman was chosen chairman, Harry A. Manley treasurer and former Judge Paul M. Fletcher secretary.

Plans were formulated for expanding this committee into an organization existing at least 5,000 members in this county and additional members in the other four counties of the district.

Each member of the Republican State Central Committee of Allegany county and its chairman, Lewis M. Wilson, was made an ex officio member of the Stewart-for-Congress Committee.

William L. Sherman was named chairman of a finance committee with Nelson W. Ressler and Miles G. Thompson as associate members.

Will Organize Women
J. Glenn Beall, of Frostburg, and Alban C. Thompson were appointed as a special committee to look after the organization of women members to assist in the campaign.

William L. Groppe was appointed chairman of a publicity committee and was also appointed a member of the Policy Committee.

Republicans generally as well as others interested in the election of Stewart to the House of Representatives are invited to join with this group of volunteers at future meetings and assist in the work.

Further organization plans will be rounded out at a meeting to be held at 8 o'clock Monday evening in the law building. Reports from the committees already named will be received and steps will be taken for holding other meetings and rallies.

Plans for Fire-Fighting School in Western Maryland Revealed

Federal Government May Sponsor Course as Defense Measure

MIDLAND, April 22—Establishment of two new fire-fighting schools in Maryland, including one in Western Maryland, is planned by the federal government in conjunction with the national defense program. It was revealed here tonight.

The announcement was made by John McNulty, of Anne Arundel county, president of the Maryland State Firemen's Association, at a special meeting of the Midland Volunteer Fire Company.

McNulty is a member of the Maryland defense council and plans for establishing the schools in Western Maryland and on the Eastern Shore were outlined in a conference

Marshall, of Williamsport, W. Va., who has a varied and unusual exhibit; William L. Wilson Sr., president of the club; and P. W. Cooper, of Barton, chairman of the show.

Sears Employees Share $4,136,129 In Benefit Plan

35 Allegany County and Keyser Workers Figure in "Pot of Gold"

Thirty-five residents of Allegany county and Keyser, W. Va., members of the staff of the Sears, Roebuck and Company store, will share in a $4,136,129 "pot of gold" representing the savings and profit sharing pension fund of company employees for the fiscal year of 1940. It was announced yesterday.

Those sharing in the fund include:

Gordon L. Bradford, Lorena A. Burke, Marion S. Cook, Dennis J. Crabtree, Anna I. Davis, Edith C. Densmore, John G. Freeland, Joseph S. Gellner, John M. Gornall, Harry P. Goss, Helen R. Gray, Charles P. Jolley, John A. Jones, Jr., William D. Luzier, Arden W. Mellott, John J. Miller, Herbert C. Muister, Charles G. Moore, Virginia Morrison and William J. Ray.

The sum is the largest contribution ever made by Sears in the twenty-five years of the fund's existence. It includes five per cent of the company's 1940 net profits before taxes as well as a special contribution of $1,000,000.

Local Sears employees, who are members of the fund, now have credited to their accounts a total of 24 shares of Sears stock. Based on a market value of 72 1/2-8, these shares are worth a total of $17,646.

John B. Morlock, manager of the local Sears store, reveals that as of January 1, 1941, a total of 609,996 shares of Sears stock have been distributed.

Mystery of Allegedly Missing Will Keeps Orphans Court Busy All Day

Judges Are Asked To Rule on Distribution of $13,500 Estate

The mystery of an apparently missing will kept the three judges of the orphans court busy all day yesterday in one of the lengthiest hearings in the court in many years.

Testimony in the case, which concerns the $13,500 estate of the late Daniel Benson McLaughlin, a bachelor, of Keyser, W. Va., was concluded at 5 p. m. Arguments by opposing counsel and submission of briefs are scheduled later before a decision is made by the court.

A petition asking the court to determine the disposition of the estate, consisting of about $13,500 in bonds and cash on deposit in Cumberland banks, was filed by seven nieces and nephews of McLaughlin—all children of the testator's dead brother, William McLaughlin, of near Oldtown.

1924 Will Held Lost
It is their contention that a will executed in January, 1924, by Daniel Benson McLaughlin was either lost, destroyed or hidden away. This assertion is contradicted by two of the administrators of the estate, Fred Dean and John Hartley, W. Taylor McLaughlin, a nephew, who was appointed co-administrator at his own request after appointment of Dean and Hartley, is leading the fight to prove existence of the 1924 will.

Bruce and Edwards To Attend Meeting Of Water Officials

Maryland-Delaware Group Meets in Washington, May 8 and 9

Charles J. Bruce, superintendent of the Evitts Creek Water Company and William J. Edwards, commissioner of water and light for the City of Cumberland, will attend the fifteenth annual conference of the Maryland-Delaware Water and Sewerage Association, scheduled for Thursday and Friday, May 8 and 9, at the Hotel Raleigh, Washington, D. C.

The address of welcome will be delivered by Major J. B. Gordon, director of sanitary engineering for the District of Columbia.

Other speakers will include Harry Stevens, sanitary engineer of Washington; Harry Hall, chief engineer, of Hyattsville; Ralph E. Fuhrman, engineer of Washington; Albert L. Genter, consulting engineer, Baltimore; Otto Voigt, engineer, United States engineers; E. L. McHugh, Washington; Edward S. Hopkins, consulting engineer, Baltimore.

A movie entitled "A New World Through Chemistry" will complete the scientific program.

Informal inspection trips to the Anacostia river sewage treatment works at Bladensburg; the District of Columbia sewage treatment works at Blue Plains, and the Robert B. Morse filtration plant at Burnt Mills, are planned.

Bruce has attended the annual conferences of the association for the past twelve years.

Columbia University Speaker Will Address Elementary Teachers

Dr. H. B. Bruner, a member of the faculty of Teachers' College, Columbia University, New York, will be the guest speaker at the dinner meeting of elementary school teachers of Allegany county, Thursday, May 1, at 6:30 p. m., in the All Ghin Shrine Country club, it was announced yesterday by Charles L. Kopp, superintendent of schools.

Two hundred and thirty-four teachers of grades one to six have been invited to attend the affair.

Shrine Potentate Of North America To Pay Visit Here

George Olendorf and Wife To Be Guest of Ali Ghan Temple, April 29

George F. Olendorf, Imperial Potentate of North America, Order Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, and Mrs. Olendorf, of Springfield, Mo., will arrive in Cumberland at noon Tuesday, April 29, on an official and fraternal visit to Ali Ghan Temple.

A meeting with the officers of the Temple will be held during the afternoon and at 6:30 p. m. officers will be guests at a banquet to be served at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club, to which all members of the Shrine, and their ladies are invited. The banquet will be followed by a floor show and dance.

It is expected that a number of guests from Hagerstown, Keyser, Frostburg and other nearby cities and towns will be present.

As Imperial Potentate, Olendorf's jurisdiction covers 159 Shrine temples located in the United States, He Canada, Mexico, the Canal Zone and Hawaiian Islands, to which he is making an effort to pay visits during his term of office of one year. He will leave here next Tuesday night for Cincinnati, where he will be the guest of Syrian Temple on Wednesday, April 30.

Mrs. Mary E. Freed, R. N., Urges Nurses To Band Together for Defense

Girls' Central Glee Club Annual Concert Scheduled Tonight

The glee club and orchestra of Catholic Girls' Central high school will give a concert this evening at 8:15 o'clock in Carroll hall, North Centre street. It will be the third annual concert to be presented by the school and will be directed by Sister Josella, instructor of music.

The program in which fifty girls will participate, will comprise vocal and dance numbers and will last about two hours.

Pupils of the lower grades attended a matinee performance yesterday and much praiseworthy comment was heard.

Superintendent of Memorial Hospital Advises All To Fill Out Questionnaires for Emergency

The need for nurses in the national defense program was stressed in a public address given last evening over radio WTBO by Mrs. Mary E. Freed, R. N., superintendent of nurses at Memorial hospital, in the ninth of a series of public information programs jointly sponsored by the Junior Association of Commerce and the Junior Bar Conference of this area.

"We are not at war," declared Mrs. Freed, "but national defense is a most important duty of every citizen living in our free country. Our men are volunteering and being drafted for national defense. Nurses are not being drafted, but today in this great world crisis, we, the greatest body of organized, trained women must band together to meet the crying need for nurses."

Must Provide Care
"Nearly one and a half million men, your brothers, cousins, nephews and neighbors, boys from the home, are being called for a year of intensive training. They are learning to defend America. Wherever there are gathered together large groups of people, there is bound to be illness. Our training camps will be no exception. The army hospital beds are being increased from 22,000 to 62,000 beds. I believe the quota for nurses is one for every 270 military personnel. The hospitals in each camp have been or are nearing completion, and comfortable quarters are being provided for the nurses. We must do our duty and provide the nursing care."

"Our aim is to find out how many registered nurses are in active duty and how many will be able to give help if needed. If there are any registered nurses listening in who have not received a questionnaire will you please write at once to the ex-secretary of nurses in the state where you are registered and ask for your questionnaire. Fill this out and return immediately. By July of this year the Army Nurse Corps expects to add 4,000 nurses to its ranks. Normally the Navy Nurse Corps has a strength of 49 nurses; their first goal is 1,500 nurses. The Indian bureau plans to add 164 nurses and the national expansion program for the Veterans administration for 1941 is 2,250.

Plan Refreshes Courses
"How are we to meet this need and continue our quality of nursing? The American Red Cross is the first reserve for the army and navy. There has been an intensive drive for enrollment of nurses in this organization. To fill these important openings will seriously deplete the nursing staff in many hospitals, particularly where the nursing is carried on by a graduate staff. The ranks will be further depleted by the private duty nurses who join. It is our hope that we may fill the gaps caused by these nurses enlisting with the Red Cross, by the married and unemployed nurses. Because many have not been in active duty for some years, a number of hospitals are planning refresher courses for the older nurses who have not kept pace with the ever increasing advances in medicine and treatments. It is also hoped that all good schools will attempt to increase their enrollment by ten per cent but we do not want inferior schools to spring up. Young women who are seeking a vocation can find no worthier one than nursing."

"Not only will we need nurses for the army and navy, but other qualified nurses will be needed from time to time to meet home emergencies which may be anticipated in war time, such as epidemics; others will be needed for disasters and other emergencies."

"To guard the heritage which generations of heroic American men and women have bequeathed us requires more than the mere mechanical preparations for defense. This task requires that each of us have a passionately active faith in the tenets and goals of American."

Receiver Asked For Shoe Store In Rent Dispute

Fraud Charged by Eisenbergs in Suit against Lawrence Peskin

Appointment of a receiver for the Family Shoe Store is asked in an equity suit filed yesterday in circuit court by trustees of the estate of Samuel Eisenberg, who charge that Lawrence Peskin, proprietor of the store, and his wife, Mrs. Freda Peskin, have made a "deliberate effort . . . to defraud" the trustees from the payment of obligations due them by Peskin.

Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan signed an order directing the Peskins to show cause by Friday why a receiver should not be appointed.

The bill of complaint, filed by Edward J. Ryan, attorney, on behalf of Loraine, Carrie and Harold Eisenberg, trustees, names Aaron Lazarus as a defendant along with the Peskins.

Seek Back Rent
The suit says that Peskin, trading as the Family Shoe Store, is indebted to the Eisenbergs for $400 a month from July, 1940, representing rent on the Baltimore street building owned by the Eisenbergs and formerly occupied by the store. The store vacated the building after the big fire of January, 1940, but the Eisenbergs maintain it was in defiance of a long-term lease and claim rent accordingly.

Suit was brought several months ago and a $400 judgment was returned against Peskin, but he failed to pay for subsequent months, the bill goes on. Accordingly, further suits were brought resulting in a $400 judgment for September, 1940; a $1,200 judgment for the months of October, November and December, 1940; and a $800 judgment for January and February, 1941.

An execution was issued by the court on the first judgment for $400 and on April 16 the sheriff levied on the goods, ware and fixtures of the store in premises on Baltimore street owned by Aaron Lazarus.

Previous Distraint Levied
But the Eisenbergs were notified a distraint had been levied April 8 against the property for rent allegedly due Lazarus, which would take precedence over the Eisenberg execution.

The Eisenbergs "have reason to believe" and charge that "the distraint is illegal and of no effect and that the sale [held to satisfy the distraint] was conducted in such a manner by the collusion of all the defendants that all of the property located on the premises was alleged to have been sold to Freda Peskin for the sum of $866."

This sale, the petition charges, "was a deliberate effort" on the part of the Peskins to "defraud" the Eisenbergs.

The bill goes on to assert that "the property, assets and effects of Peskin, if properly administered, would have been sufficient to have discharged his debts and obligations."

Mayor Tells Department Heads To Prepare Figures for Budget

Warns of Increase in Tax Rate unless Appropriations Are Pared

The mayor pointed out that the budget must be prepared by May 25 and warned that the city tax rate may be raised one or two cents, unless the department heads pare down their appropriations. In event city officials do not have their figures ready by next Monday, a special session will be called later in the week.

Irvine stated that if the police salary increase bill is signed by the governor, it will boost the police department appropriation to $91,000. It was proposed to give street department employees an increase of five cents an hour or guarantee them four and one-half days of work each week.

Reduction in the appropriations for parks and playgrounds was indicated. City officials also discussed some reduction in library funds, but were unanimous in the opinion that work of the library should not be "crippled" by any large cut in money allotted.

City finances was the topic of conversation yesterday at the city hall at a session of the mayor and council at which the awarding of the garbage contract was held up pending the filing of a bond by the low bidder, Emmett A. Dougherty, of 1211 Bedford street.

Dougherty, who attended the meeting, said he has arranged to purchase the equipment of Miller and Davis, holders of the present contract which expires April 30. He was given eight days in which to obtain the necessary bond.

Mayor Harry Irvine urged heads of the various city departments to have their tentative figures ready by next week in order that the budget for the new fiscal year may be drawn up.
